

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Translation, Orthography, Names, and Dates	xv
Introduction	i
PART I
Allegory and the Commentary Tradition in Poetry and Noh
1 Establishing the Frame: Allegory, Commentary, Narihira	17
2 The Six Poetic Modes: A Medieval Understanding of Allegory	49
3 Zenchiku, Meishukushū , and Allegoresis	82
PART II
Ise Monogatari Commentaries and Noh
4 Early Noh and Medieval Commentaries on Ise monogatari	101
5 A Storm of Blossoms: An Unstable Narihira in Unrin'in	113

6	Spellbound by Blossoms: Oshio as Political and Religious Allegory	152
7	The Color of Love: Desire and Enlightenment in Kakitsubata	193

PART III

Kokinshū Commentaries and Noh

8	Turning Damsel Flowers into Lotus Blossoms: Female Soteriology in Ominameshi	233
9	Emerging from the Waves: Sumiyoshi as Protector of Japan in Haku Rakuten	266

Afterword	305
-----------	-----

Notes	309
--------------	-----

Abbreviations and Bibliography	359
---------------------------------------	-----

Primary Sources in Japanese	359
-----------------------------	-----

Secondary Sources in Japanese	364
-------------------------------	-----

Works in English	371
------------------	-----

Index	383
--------------	-----