

Contents

Chiyo Nishida Cinzia Russi	Introduction	i-vi
Asier Alcázar Mario Saltarelli	Why imperative sentences cannot be embedded	1-23
Cécile Barbet Louis de Saussure	Sporadic aspect as a pragmatic enrichment of dynamic root modality	25-43
Pier Marco Bertinetto	Tense-aspect acquisition meets typology	45-68
Patrick Caudal Marie-Ève Ritz	Discourse structure and the perfective evolution of the Australian Present Perfect : Some new hypotheses	69-89
Pilar Chamorro	Future time reference and irrealis modality in Chamorro : A study of preverbal para	91-113
Justin Kelly	The syntax and semantics of infinitival yet constructions	115-139
Yusuke Kubota Jungmee Lee Anastasia Smirnova Judith Tonhauser	Cross-linguistic variation in temporal adjunct clauses	141-161
Brenda Laca	On modal tenses and tensed modals	163-198
I-wen Lai	The realis and irrealis distinction in the Iquito language	199-217
Hiroki Nomoto Nala Huiying Lee	Realis, factuality and derived-level statives: Perspectives from the analysis of Singlish got	219-239
Katia Paykin Fayssal Tayalati	Behavior adjectives: Dynamic, agentive and unergative	241-257
Alain Rihs	A defence of the overlap criterion for distinguishing between the French gerund and present participle	259- 275

Cinzia Russi	Locating Italian volere 'to want' and volerci 'to be needed, to be required' in the Verb-to-TAM chain	277-301
Karen Zagona	Ser and estar : Phrase structure and aspect	303-327