

Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
Abbreviations	xi
Introduction	1
1 Bataille, Nietzsche, Lacan, and the Real of Erotics	15
1.1 Palaeolithic Transition from Animal to Human	16
1.2 Death of Tragedy from Socrates' Incompetence	20
1.3 Taboo on Transgression from Yahweh's Ignorance	26
1.4 Capitalism's Curious Service of Goods	32
2 Metaphorizing the Split Gaze of Bataille's Story of Eye	47
2.1 Surface Formalism: Metonymic Cross-cuts of Metaphoric Chains	48
2.2 Depth Contents: The Violence of the Eye's Transgression	54
2.3 Sade's Sovereign Man: The Rape of Priest's Eye by the Gaze	59
3 Bataille, Nietzsche, Lacan, and the Real of Aesthetics	75
3.1 Dissident Surrealism: Bataille's Documents Critique of Aesthetics	76
3.2 Lascaux Caves: Divine Animality as the Originary Real of Aesthetics	81
3.3 The Accursed Sovereignty of Art, and Nietzsche	88
4 Nietzsche's Affirming Psychoanalysis in Freud, Surrealist Modernism, Bataille, and Lacan	97
4.1 Germanophone Context: Nietzsche and Freud	98

4.2	Francophone Context: Bataille, Surrealism, Modernism, Lacan	106
4.3	Dionysian Context: Presence of Myth in Absence	113
5	From Dionysos to Devil: Bataille's Evil Happiness of Literature	125
5.1	Literature's Quest for Happiness of the Erotic	126
5.2	Literature as Condescension of Desire to Evil	130
5.3	Poetry's Force of Sovereignty from the Rut of Literature	134
5.4	Art and Politics: Separate Connection of the Imaginary and Symbolic in the Real	140
6	Eternal Returns: Erotic Politics in Bataille's Blue of Noon	149
6.1	Superficial Socialisms – The Case of Lazare	150
6.2	Superficial Surrealisms – The Case of Xenie	154
6.3	Libidinal Demands for Death – The Return of Dirty Doro-thea	159
6.4	Split-Subjects of Political Economy – Left, Right, Left . . .	163
	Conclusion	173
	Bibliography	187
	Index	203
	About the Author	217