

Contents

Preface	xv
List of Tables and Boxes	xvi
List of Abbreviations	xvii
Notes on Contributors	xix
Introduction: EU External Action and Tools to Study It	1
Sieglinde Gstöhl and Simon Schunz
Introduction	1
What is EU external action?	2
Tools to study EU external action	4
Outline of the book	5
References	8
1 The History of European Union External Action and Its Study	10
Sieglinde Gstöhl and Simon Schunz
Introduction	10
The historical evolution of EU external action and its academic study	11
Phase 1 (1950–1969): neglect of the external dimension	11
Phase 2 (1970–1992): emergence of EU external action (studies)	13
Phase 3 (1993–2009): expansion – the Maastricht Treaty and EU enlargements	15
Phase 4 (2010–today): diversification of EU external action (studies) after the Lisbon Treaty	18
Conclusion	20
Key readings	21
Other references	21
PART I – CONCEPTUALIZING THE EU AS A GLOBAL ACTOR
2 Actorness and the Study of the EU’s External Action	27
Edith Drieskens
Introduction	27
Purpose: measuring (European) integration	28
State of the art: negative and positive aspects	31
Negative aspects	31
Positive aspects	32
Case study: the EU’s search for a new status at the UN General Assembly	33
EU actorness according to Jupille and Caporaso	33
EU actorness according to Bretherton and Vogler	35
Conclusion	36

Summary: the concept of EU actorness in external affairs	37
Key readings	37
Other references	37
3 Role Theory and the Study of Leadership in EU External Action	40
Lisbeth Aggestam
Introduction	40
State of the art: role theory in EU External Action Studies	41
A role theory approach to leadership	44
EU leadership studies	44
A role theory approach to the study of EU leadership	45
Case study: leadership in EU external action	46
Conclusion	50
Summary: role theory as an approach to EU external action	51
Key readings	51
Other references	52
4 The European Union as ‘Market Power Europe’	54
Chad Damro
Introduction	54
State of the art: key tenets and developments	55
The three characteristics of MPE as a concept	56
Externalization: MPE as an approach	59
Case study: MPE and competition policy	60
MPE as a concept: why the EU is a market power in competition policy	60
MPE as an approach: how and how successfully the EU externalizes its competition rules	62
Conclusion	65
Summary: Market Power Europe and EU external action	65
Key readings	66
Other references	66
5 Normative Power Approach to European Union External Action	69
Ian Manners
Introducing the normative power approach	69
Normative power approach, theory and concepts	70
Case studies in the normative power approach	73
Planetary conflicts: principles of sustainable peace and rule of law	74
Planetary economy: principles of freedom and social solidarity	75
Planetary society: principles of human rights and equality	76
Planetary ecology: principles of sustainable development and combating climate change	77
Planetary polity: principles of democracy and good governance	78
Conclusion: global justice in the EU’s external action	80
Summary: the normative power approach to EU external action	81
Key readings	81
Other references	82

PART II – ANALYZING PROCESSES AND IMPACT OF EU EXTERNAL ACTION

6	Conceptualizing Coherence in EU External Action	87
	Clara Portela
	Introduction: the birth and evolution of the concept of coherence	87
	Defining and ensuring coherence	88
	Types of coherence	88
	Coherence as an aspiration in practice	89
	Facets of the study of coherence in EU external action research:
	state of the art	90
	Case study: the EU's 'policy coherence for development' in Africa	93
	The intra-institutional dimension	94
	The inter-institutional dimension	95
	The vertical dimension	96
	Overall assessment	96
	Conclusion	97
	Summary: the concept of coherence in EU external action	98
	Key readings	99
	Other references	99
7	The EU in International Negotiations: Three-Level Game and Principal-Agent Approaches	102
	Sieglinde Gstöhl
	Introduction: studying interaction across levels of analysis	102
	Combining three-level game and principal-agent approaches
	in EU external action	103
	The principals' delegation and the agent's discretion	104
	Win-sets and their determinants	105
	Case study: the EU's Comprehensive Economic and Trade
	Agreement with Canada	108
	The shaping of the EU's win-set	109
	The shaping of Canada's win-set	111
	Conclusion	113
	Summary: EU international negotiations as three-level games	114
	Key readings	114
	Other references	114
8	EU External Governance and Europeanization	117
	Frank Schimmelfennig
	Introduction	117
	External governance and Europeanization: state of the art	118
	Modes of external governance	120
	Mechanisms and conditions of external Europeanization	121
	Case study: models of democracy promotion and the EU's promotion
	of democratic governance in Ukraine	124
	Modes and mechanisms of EU democracy promotion	125
	EU democracy promotion in Ukraine	126

Conclusion	129
Summary: external governance and Europeanization in EU External Action Studies	130
Key readings	131
Other references	131
9 Analyzing the Effectiveness of European Union External Action	134
Simon Schunz
Introduction	134
State of the art on EU external effectiveness	135
A framework for analysing EU external effectiveness	138
Establishing EU external effectiveness	138
Explaining EU external effectiveness	141
Case study: analysing the effectiveness of EU external climate action	142
Establishing EU external effectiveness in global climate negotiations	143
Identifying EU objectives	143
Matching objectives with outputs/outcomes	143
Tracing EU external action in process	144
Determining the degree of EU external effectiveness	144
Explaining variation in EU external effectiveness	145
Conclusion	146
Summary: the analysis of effectiveness in EU external action	146
Key readings	147
Other references	147
PART III – EXPLAINING EU EXTERNAL ACTION WITH IR AND INTEGRATION THEORIES
10 EU External Action from a Realist Perspective	151
Adrian Hyde-Price
Introduction	151
State of the art: realist international theory and EU external action	153
Three strands of realist international theory	154
Key tenets of realist international theory and the EU	155
Case study: the EU, Russia and the Eastern Partnership	157
Conclusion	161
Summary: realist theory and the study of EU external action	162
Key readings	163
Other references	163
11 Theorizing EU External Action: A Neofunctionalist Perspective	165
Arne Niemann and Julian Bergmann
Introduction	165
Classical and revised neofunctionalist theory: explaining the European integration process	166
Assumptions and research questions	166
Types of spillover	166
Further development of neofunctionalist theory	168
Neofunctionalist theorizing and EU external action	170

Classical types of spillover	170
External spillover	171
Case study: EU mediation in the Belgrade–Pristina dialogue	172
Functional spillover	173
Cultivated spillover	174
External spillover	175
Conclusion: strengths and weaknesses of analyzing EU external action from a neofunctionalist perspective	176
Summary: neofunctionalist theory and EU external action	177
Key readings	177
Other references	177
12 Liberal Intergovernmentalism and EU External Action	181
Andrew Moravcsik and Cassandra Emmons
Introduction	181
State of the art: Liberal Intergovernmentalism and EU external action	183
Stage one: sub-national demands to manage issue-specific interdependence explain national preferences	183
Stage two: asymmetric interdependence explains interstate bargaining outcomes	185
Stage three: collective action problems explain the level of institutionalization	186
Case study: the EU's response to the Ukraine crisis from an LI perspective	189
Conclusion	192
Summary: Liberal Intergovernmentalism's explanation of EU external action	193
Key readings	193
Other references	193
13 Constructivism and the Role of the 'Other' in EU External Action	197
Bahar Rumelili
Introduction	197
Identity and difference in EU external action: five key premises	198
Identity matters	198
Identity depends on difference	199
External differentiation is unavoidable (even) for EU external action	200
'Othering' takes different forms	200
Different forms of 'Othering' carry different implications	201
Inherent difference: transactional cooperation or conflict	203
Acquired difference: normative convergence versus dissociation	204
Case study: EU–Turkey relations 1989 to present	206
1989–1999: normative dissociation and conflict	206
1999–2006: normative convergence	207
2006–2011: normative convergence and conflict	207
2011 to present: normative dissociation and transactional cooperation	208
Conclusion	209

Summary: constructivism and the study of EU external action	210
Key readings	210
Other references	210
PART IV – TURNS IN THE SOCIAL SCIENCES AND THEIR REPERCUSSIONS FOR THE STUDY OF EU EXTERNAL ACTION
14 Discourse Analytical Approaches and the Study of EU External Action	215
Caterina Carta
Introduction	215
Studying discourses to understand the EU's external action: concepts and approaches	216
Case study: the EU's strategic ambition in context	218
The context of the EU's strategies	219
Writing the strategies	220
Who are the 'Others'?	221
Who are 'we'?	222
Conclusions: words and deeds in the study of the EU as an international actor	223
Summary: discourse analytical approaches to the study of EU external action	224
Key readings	225
Other references	225
15 Analyzing EU External Action Through the Lens of Global Justice Theory	228
Helene Sjursen and Joachim Vigrestad
Introduction	228
What is global justice?	229
Why study global political justice?	230
Global justice, the crisis of the liberal order and the EU's external action	232
Institutional implications of the three conceptions of global political justice for EU external action	234
Case study: assessing the EU's approach to sustainable development in trade agreements	235
Conclusion	238
Summary: EU external action and global political justice theory	239
Key readings	239
Other references	239
16 The 'Practice Turn' in the Study of EU External Action	242
Federica Bicchi
Introduction	242
State of the art: practice approaches and international politics	243
What is a practice?	243
Is this a theory? Does it provide a cause-and-effect analysis?	245
Practice approaches in EU External Action Studies	246
Case study: a community of practice approach to EU external action	247
Conclusion	252
Summary: the practice turn in the study of EU external action	253

Key readings	253
Other references	253
17 Gendering EU External Action: Feminist Insights	256
Roberta Guerrina
Introduction	256
Feminists theorize global politics: from gendering IR to the EU as a gender actor	257
State of the art: feminists theorize EU external action	258
Gender mainstreaming in EU external policies	259
Gendering normative power Europe	260
Gendering EU institutions	262
Case study: the EU adopts the Women, Peace and Security agenda	263
Emergence of a global gender norm: UNSC Resolution 1325	263
The EU's adoption and implementation of UNSCR 1325	264
Conclusion: missed opportunities for gendering the European security agenda?	267
Summary: gender approaches to the study of EU external action	268
Key readings	268
Other references	268
PART V – DECENTRING EU EXTERNAL ACTION: OVERCOMING EU-CENTRISM WITH OUTSIDE PERSPECTIVES
18 Theorizing External Perceptions of the EU	273
Natalia Chaban and Ole Elgström
Introduction: a perceptual approach to EU external action	273
What are (external) perceptions?	274
Why study external perceptions?	275
The state of the art of studying external perceptions	275
Perceptions in IR theory	275
Perceptions in EU External Action Studies	276
A perceptual approach to EU external action	277
Which perceptions to investigate?	278
How to study external perceptions?	278
When to study external perceptions?	280
Case study: perceptions of the EU as conflict manager in Ukraine	280
Conclusion: shortcomings of the approach and possible remedies	283
Summary: a perceptual approach to EU external action	284
Key readings	285
Other references	285
19 The Decentring Agenda: A Post-Colonial Approach to EU External Action	288
Nora Fisher-Onar and Kalypso Nicolaidis
Introduction	288
State of the art: post-colonial inspiration for Global EU External Action Studies	290
How to decentre: towards Global EU External Action Studies	292

Case study I: decentring EU–Turkey relations	294
‘Post-’ as reproduction	295
Multilogical possibilities	296
Case study II: decentring EU–MENA relations	297
‘Post-’ as reproduction	297
Towards ‘post-’ as transcendence: bordering as a multilogical practice	299
Conclusion	300
Summary: decentring EU external action: a post-colonial approach	300
Key readings	300
Other references	301
20 Decentring European Foreign Policy Analysis	305
Stephan Keukeleire and Sharon Lecocq
Introduction	305
State of the art: FPA, decentring the study of IR and European foreign policy	307
Foreign Policy Analysis	307
The emergence of the decentring approach in IR	308
Decentring the analysis of European foreign policy	309
Applying the decentring approach to European Foreign Policy Analysis (FPA)	311
Case study: decentring European Foreign Policy (Analysis) and the EU’s Southern neighbourhood	313
Conclusion: pitfalls and further research potential of the decentring approach	316
Summary: decentring European Foreign Policy (Analysis)	317
Key readings	317
Other references	318
Conclusion: EU External Action Studies – The Way Forward	321
Sieglinde Gstöhl and Simon Schunz
Introduction	321
How mature is EU External Action Studies as a field?	322
Object of research with specialist knowledge and terminology	323
Approaches, theories and methods	323
Institutionalization	327
How can EU External Action Studies be further consolidated?	328
Students	329
Scholars	331
Practitioners	332
Conclusion	333
References	334
Index	335