

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	9
Preface	11

PART I TECHNIQUES OF INTERPRETATION

1 Semiological Analysis	14
A Brief History of the Subject	15
The Problem of Meaning	16
Signs	19
Language and Speaking	21
The Synchronic and the Diachronic	23
Syntagmatic Analysis	24
Paradigmatic Analysis	30
Metaphor and Metonymy	32
Codes	34
Semiology of the Television Medium	37
Some Criticisms of Semiological Analysis	39
A Checklist for Semiological Analysis of Television	40
Annotated Bibliography	42
2 Marxist Analysis	44
Materialism	45
The Base and the Superstructure	48
False Consciousness and Ideology	49
Class Conflict	53
Alienation	55
The Consumer Society	57
Bourgeois Heroes	59
Hegemony	61
The Danger of Being Doctrinaire	64
Annotated Bibliography	66
3 Psychoanalytic Criticism	68
The Unconscious	68
Sexuality	72
Id, Ego, Superego	76
Symbols	78
Defense Mechanisms	80

	Dreams	82
	Aggression and Guilt	85
	Psychoanalytic Analysis of Media: A Cautionary Note	86
	Annotated Bibliography	88
4	Sociological Analysis	90
	Some Basic Concepts	92
	Uses and Gratifications	98
	Content Analysis	107
	Annotated Bibliography	110

PART II APPLICATIONS

5	Murderers on the Orient Express	112
	Organizing a Mystery	113
	Detectives as Semiologists	116
	Social and Political Dimensions	117
	Poirot as Revolutionary	118
6	Seven Points on the Game of Football	121
	Football Is a Game of Signs	122
	Instant Replay and the Modern Sensibility	123
	Football Socializes Us	125
	Why Baseball Is Boring	126
	Football as an Alternative to Religion	128
	The Marxist Perspective	130
	Football and the Psyche	132
	Concluding Remarks	134
	Sex and Symbol in Fashion Advertising	135
	Selling Magic	136
	Breaking the Advertising Code	142
8	All-News Radio and the American Bourgeoisie	147
	News and Alienation	148
	News and Ruling-Class Ideology	150
	Commercials and Anxiety	151
	Caught in the Middle	152
	Epilogue: Shmoos and Analysis	155
	References	158
	About the Author	160