

Contents

Acknowledgements	vi
Introduction: Postcolonial Traumas: Theories and Narratives	1
1 Origins, Original Trauma, and Transgenerational Trauma: The Obsessions and Revelations of History	23
1.1 The Roots that Drown and Save: The Excessive Attachments of Samad Miah Iqbal	27
1.2 The Routes to Vengeance and the Fight against History: The Case of Millat Iqbal	38
1.3 Secrets and Roots: Transgenerational Trauma in the Bowden Women	49
2 The Erasure of Origins against Original Trauma: The Ambivalences of Forgetting and Remembering in White Teeth , On Beauty , and NW	69
2.1 Confronting the “Deeper Malaise” of Being Other	70
2.2 On Beauty and the Uses and Ambiguities of Forgetting	81
2.3 NW: The Ambivalence of Trauma and Self	90
3 Multiple Origins and Multidirectional Memory: Dialogic Histories of Slavery in The Embassy of Cambodia and Swing Time	112
3.1 Genocide in the Suburbs: Trauma and Multidirectional Memory in The Embassy of Cambodia	113
3.2 Multiple Ancestries, Violent Memories, and the (Im)Possibilities of Multidirectional Memory in Swing Time	127
Conclusion: The Forms, Complexities, and Contradictions of Postcolonial Trauma	148
Index	165