

CONTENTS

Introduction by Lewis E. Hahn	ix
1. ESSAYS: The Influence of Darwinism on Philosophy, 3; Nature and Its Good: A Conversation, 15; Intelligence and Morals, 31; The Intellectualist Criterion for Truth, 50; The Dilemma of the Intellectualist Theory of Truth, 76; The Control of Ideas by Facts, 78; The Logical Character of Ideas, 91; What Pragmatism Means by Practical, 98; Discussion on Realism and Idealism, 116; [Discussion on the "Concept of a Sensation"], 118; Pure Experience and Reality: A Disclaimer, 120; Does Reality Possess Practical Character? 125; A Reply to Professor McGilvary's Questions (1912), 143; Objects, Data, and Existences: A Reply to Professor McGilvary, 146; Address to National Negro Conference, 156; Education as a University Study, 158; Religion and Our Schools, 165; The Bearings of Pragmatism upon Education, 178; History for the Educator, 192; The Purpose and Organization of Physics Teaching in Secondary Schools, 198; Teaching That Does Not Educate, 201; The Moral Significance of the Common School Studies, 205	1
2. REVIEWS: Studies in Philosophy and Psychology by former students of Charles Edward Garman, 217; The Life of Reason by George Santayana, 229; Henry Sidgwick by A. S(idgwick) and E(leanor) M. S(idgwick), 242; Anti-pragmatisme by Albert Schinz, 245	215
3. Syllabus: The Pragmatic Movement of Contemporary Thought	251
4. Moral Principles in Education	265

5. APPENDIXES: 1. Pure Experience and Reality by Evander Bradley McGilvary, 295; 2. Professor Dewey's "Action of Consciousness" by Evander Bradley McGilvary (1911), 314; 3. The Chicago "Idea" and Idealism by Evander Bradley McGilvary, 317; 4. Editor's Introduction to Moral Principles in Education by Henry Suzzallo, 328; 5. Outline of Moral Principles in Education , 332	293
Textual Apparatus	335
Index	433