

CONTENTS

Note on the References and Abbreviations, xv

1. Meditation I: The Method of Doubt, 3

1. Descartes's Goal, 3

First Meditation, 9

2. The Cartesian Doubt, 13

3. Is Cartesian Doubt Self-refuting? 25

3.1. The Deceptiveness of the Senses, 25

3.2. The Dream Argument, 27

3.3. The Deceiver Argument, 29

Notes, 34

2. Meditation II: The Cogito and the Self, 36

Second Meditation, 36

1. Descartes's "I am thinking, therefore I exist", 43

2. The Certainty of One's Own Thoughts, 45

3. A Problem for the Cogito, 48

4. The Substance Theory, 50

5. The Structure of the Cogito, 53

6. Critical Discussion of the Cogito, 56

6.1. The Substance Theory and the Argument from Change, 57

6.2. The Corollary, 58

6.3. The Assumption that Thoughts Are Properties, 61

6.4. The Inference to "I exist", 62

6.5. Final Evaluation of the Cogito, 63

7. Descartes's Conception of the Self, 64

8. Cartesian Dualism, 69

Notes, 72

3. Meditation III: The Criterion of Truth and the Existence of God, 73

Third Meditation, 73
(paragraphs 1–27 and 37–39)

1. Descartes's Criterion of Truth, 83
 2. The Project of Meditation III, 87
 3. From the Idea of God to God, 89
 - 3.1. The Nature of Ideas, 90
 - 3.2. Objective Reality and Formal Reality, 92
 - 3.3. The Core Argument, 96
 - 3.4. The Central Argument of Meditation III: The Subargument, the Core Argument, and the Sequel, 99
 4. Criticisms of Descartes's Central Argument in Meditation III, 109
 - 4.1. The Subargument, 109
 - 4.1.1. The Precontainment Principle, 109
 - 4.1.2. Degrees of Reality, 114
 - 4.1.3. Justifying the Causal Maxim, 116
 - 4.2. The Problem of the Cartesian Circle, 119
 - 4.2.1. The "Vindication-not-needed Strategy" and The Memory Defense, 121
 - 4.2.2. The "Criterion-not-needed Strategy" and the General Rule Defense, 125
 - 4.2.3. The Creation of the Eternal Truths and the "Validation of Reason", 133
 - 4.3. A Final Criticism of the Core Argument, 141
- Notes, 143

4. Meditation V: The Ontological Argument for the Existence of God, 147

Fifth Meditation, 147

1. Descartes's Ontological Argument, 153
 2. Critique of the Ontological Argument, 159
 - 2.1. Gaunilo's Objection, 159
 - 2.2. Kant's Objection, 160
 - 2.3. Further Consideration of Kant's Objection, 164
 - 2.4. Caterus' Objection, 168
 3. Some Implications for Descartes's System, 174
- Notes, 175

5. Meditation VI: Dualism and the Material World, 177

1. Introduction, 177

Sixth Meditation, 178
(paragraphs 1 [edited] and 5-24)

2. Descartes's Proof of the "Real Distinction" Between Mind and Body, 188

3. Descartes's Proof of the Material World, 199

4. Descartes on the Nature of the Material World, 205

4.1. Primary and Secondary Qualities, 205

4.2. Matter, Space, and Solidity, 209

4.3. Bodies as Substances versus Bodies as Modes of Substance, 212

5. Dualism and the Problem of Interaction, 217

6. An Assessment of Cartesian Dualism, 224

Notes, 233

Works Cited, 235*Index*, 239