

Contents

Preface ▪ ix

Introduction: Dewey's Lifelong Crusade for Participatory Democracy ▪ xi

Part I

Chapter 1: Michigan Beginnings, 1884–1894 ▪ 3

Dewey's First Attempt to Combine Theory and Practice ▪ 7

Chapter 2: Dewey at the University of Chicago, 1894–1904 ▪ 13

President Harper and Chicago's Department of Pedagogy ▪ 14

Plato's The Republic and Dewey's Philosophy of Education ▪ 20

Participatory Democratic Societies and Participatory

Democratic Schooling Systems ▪ 22

Dewey's Laboratory School ▪ 24

Wilhelm Wundt's Psychological Laboratory and Dewey's

Scientific Laboratory School ▪ 29

Jane Addams, Hull House, and Dewey's Prophetic Essay

"The School as Social Centre" ▪ 33

The Schooling System as the Strategic Subsystem of Modern Societies ▪ 40

Chapter 3: Dewey Leaves the University of Chicago for Columbia University * 45

*Dewey Abandons Any Attempt to Integrate Schooling
Theory and Schooling Practice* * 46

Dewey vs. Lippmann: Participatory Democracy and Face-to-Face Neighborly Communities * 51

*Democratic Theory and the Construction of Democratic,
Cosmopolitan, Neighborly Communities* * 54

Chapter 4: Elsie Clapp's Contributions to Community Schools * 63

Maurice Seay and Community Schools * 69

*The Rise and Decline of the Community School
Movement after 1945* * 71

Part II

Chapter 5: Penn and the Third Revolution in American Higher Education * 77

*Increasing Penn's Engagement with Local Public Schools as a Practical Example of Democratic
Devolution Revolution* * 81

An Innovative Strategy to Achieve a Democratic Devolution Revolution * 83

*Penn and West Philadelphia Public Schools: Learning
by Reflective Doing* * 86

Chapter 6: The Center for Community Partnerships * 93

Changing Penn's Undergraduate Curriculum To Help Change West Philadelphia's Public Schools * 96

*Community Healthcare as a Complex Strategic Problem to "Do Good" and Help Bring about
"One University"* * 99

Democratic Partnerships and Communal Participatory Action Research * 104

President Judith Rodin's Inspiring Vision of Penn and West Philadelphia as Constituting a "Beloved Community" • 107

President Amy Gutmann Proclaims a "Penn Compact" to "Serve Humanity and Society" • 108

Chapter 7: The University Civic Responsibility Idea Becomes an International Movement • 111

An International Academic Consortium for the Advancement of Democracy • 114

Chapter 8: John Dewey, the Coalition for Community Schools, and Developing a Participatory Democratic American Society • 121

Acknowledgments • 127

Authorship • 129

Notes • 131

Index • 143

About the Authors • 151