

Contents

| | |
|--|-----------|
| List of Figures | ix |
| Acknowledgments | xi |
| 1. Introduction: Intertextual Media References in Millennial Friend Discourse | 1 |
| “Sounds like a bad Oregon Trail trip!”: Embarking on a Research Journey | 1 |
| Purpose of This Book | 4 |
| Knowledge, Framing, and Identity | 7 |
| Knowledge: Intertextuality and Epistemics | 7 |
| Framing | 12 |
| Identity | 13 |
| Media References in Millennial Friends’ Talk Study Methodology | 15 |
| Exploring Millennial Friends’ Talk | 15 |
| Collecting and Analyzing Data: Identifying Intertextual Media References | 17 |
| The Conversations and the Millennial Friends | 18 |
| Issues with Analyzing These Millennial Friends’ Talk | 21 |
| Preview of the Chapters | 23 |
| 2. “One of us”: Signaling Media References | 26 |
| Contextualization Cues | 27 |
| Five Ways Media References Are Signaled in Talk | 30 |
| “Not that there’s anything WRONG with that”: Word Stress and Intonation | 30 |
| “You shall not pass!”: Pitch Shifts | 36 |
| The Role of Smiling and Laughter in Making Media References | 42 |
| Performing Stylized Accents | 46 |
| “Spam spam spam spam!”: Singing | 55 |
| Contextualizing Media References in Everyday Talk | 58 |
| 3. “I’m a sweet intertextual”: Demonstrating Engagement with Media References | 62 |
| The Joint Construction of Meaning | 63 |
| Four Ways Listeners Engage with Media References | 64 |
| “Yeah, yes, exactly”: Explicit Recognition | 64 |
| “A shared universe of discourse”: Repetition | 71 |
| “Pseudo-plausible worlds” and “shared hilarity”: Laughter | 75 |
| “Like that Beauty and the Beast song”: Participation in a Play Frame | 81 |
| Engaging with Media References | 89 |

| | |
|--|-----|
| 4. “Friends don’t let friends skip rat day”: | |
| Referencing Memes, Shifting Epistemic Frames, and Constructing Intertextual Identities | 92 |
| Internet Memes | 95 |
| Referencing Memes in Everyday Talk | 97 |
| “She’s a strong independent woman” | 97 |
| “Who’s texting us?” | 106 |
| “Bro do you even paint” | 109 |
| “Long hair don’t care” | 117 |
| Meme References in Everyday Talk | 119 |
| 5. “This is like an RPG where you pick up friends along the way”: | |
| Overlapping and Embedding Video Game Frames, Negotiating Epistemics, and Constructing Intertextual Identities | 122 |
| Video Games | 124 |
| Referencing Video Games in Everyday Talk | 126 |
| “We have been paid by ‘Arstotzka’”: Papers, Please References in Conversation | 128 |
| Papers, Please References in Other Conversations | 136 |
| The Oregon Trail in Conversation | 139 |
| “She will be unable to carry food for the rest of the trip”: | |
| The Oregon Trail References in Conversation | 140 |
| “You can eat some steaks in Minecraft ”: References to Other Video Games in Conversation | 147 |
| Video Game References in Everyday Talk | 149 |
| 6. Conclusion: Frames, Epistemics, and Intertextual Identity Construction among Millennial Friends | 152 |
| An Interdisciplinary Approach to Knowledge and Identity | 152 |
| Intertextuality and Epistemics as Approaches to Identity | 153 |
| Intertextual Identities among Millennial Friends | 154 |
| Closing Remarks | 158 |
| 7. Postscript | 161 |
| Appendix: Transcription Conventions | 163 |
| References | 165 |
| Index | 179 |