

CONTENTS

List of Illustrations vii

Acknowledgments ix

Introduction: Framing Queer Postcolonial
Interventions after the War 1

PART 1: MASCULINITY AND MEMORY

1. Haunted Masculinity and the Wounds of War:
Alain Resnais's Muriel and Laurent Mauvignier's
The Wound 39
2. "You'll Never Give Me a Bad Conscience!":
Masculinity and Postcolonial Guilt in Caché 71

PART 2: QUEERING POSTCOLONIAL LEGACIES

3. Eros and Eden: Pierre Guyotat and Queer Pleasures 97
 4. Queer Palimpsests and October 17, 1961:
Memory Politics in Leïla Sebbar's The Seine Was Red 127
 5. Queering Identity, Embracing In-Betweenness:
Disidentification and Re-membering in Nina
Bouraoui's Tomboy 151
- Conclusion: Queer Postcolonial Entanglements 179

Notes 189

Bibliography 229

Index 247