

Contents

List of figures	vii
List of tables	ix
Preface	xi
Part I: A critical stance on global issues	1
1 The role of mathematics in shaping our world Richard Barwell	3
2 The economy Laurinda Brown	16
3 Climate change Richard Barwell	31
4 Food Jan Winter	50
5 Biodiversity Alf Coles	60
6 Towards a mathematics for human rights and social justice Tony Cotton	73

Part II: Into the classroom as if the planet matters	85
7 Critical mathematics education: from theory to practice Tony Cotton	87
8 Starting from handling data Tony Cotton	98
9 Starting from algebra Alf Coles	108
10 Starting from number Jan Winter	121
11 Starting from geometry Alf Coles and Laurinda Brown	134
12 Starting from probability Richard Barwell	148
Conclusion: the planet matters – does mathematics teaching?	162
Index	168