
Contents

Preface	ix
Introduction	1
Part I Reform and and Expansion 1860–1885	15
1. Contours of the Reform Crisis	17
2. Economic Conditions	33
3. The Role of Nationalism	49
4. Imperial Interests	64
4.1. Policy and War in the Balkans	65
4.2. Expansion into Central Asia	86
5. The Limits of Imperial Policy	101
Part II Borrowed Imperialism 1885–1905	123
6. Backwardness and Industrialisation	125
7. Trade and Tariff Policies: St Petersburg's German Partner	150
8. Capital Imports and the Alliance: Franco-Russian Relations	169
9. Expansion in Eastern Asia	186
9.1. The Concept and Reality of 'Peaceful Penetration'	187
9.2. From the Boxer Rebellion to the Russo-Japanese War	206
10. War and Revolution	220
Part III Between the Wars 1905–1914	247
11. Armaments, Financial Policies and the Economy	255
12. Foreign Policy and Military Planning	273
13. Internal Political Conflicts and the Decision to go to War	293
14. The Asian Periphery	318

Part IV Conclusions	339
Abbreviations	347
Bibliography	349
Index	383