

Contents

Foreword and acknowledgments .....	v
------------------------------------	---

Part I Introduction

1. Preface.....	1
2. State of research.....	2
2.1. Roman Republican and Augustan engraved gems .....	2
2.2. Studies of propaganda on Roman Republican and Augustan gems .....	10
2.3. General studies of Roman propaganda and self-presentation referring to engraved gems .....	12
2.4. Conclusions.....	14
3. Aims, methodology and structure.....	16
3.1. Aims .....	16
3.2. Methodology.....	17
3.3. Structure .....	19

Part II Theory

4. Self-presentation and propaganda – definitions and characteristics.....	22
4.1. Definitions of ‘self-presentation’ and ‘propaganda’ .....	22
4.2. Propaganda and persuasion.....	24
4.3. Propaganda and public opinion .....	25
4.4. Propaganda as a form of communication.....	26
4.5. Forms of propaganda .....	27
4.6. Tools and techniques of propaganda .....	29
4.7. The effectiveness of propaganda .....	31
5. Roman propaganda on engraved gems – general introduction.....	33
5.1. Anticipated areas of propaganda on engraved gems.....	33
5.1.1. Use of gems in triumphs.....	33
5.1.2. Collecting.....	33
5.1.3. Employment of gem engravers .....	34
5.1.4. Seals .....	34
5.1.5. Personal branding and self-promotion.....	34
5.1.6. Induction and manifestation of loyalty and support .....	35
5.1.7. Use of heritage .....	35
5.1.8. Promotion of family and oneself through origo .....	36
5.1.9. Promotion of faction.....	36
5.1.10. Commemoration.....	37
5.1.11. Promotion of abstract ideas ( ordo rerum , Pax Augusta and aurea aetas ).....	37
5.1.12. Religious, divine and mythological references .....	37
5.1.13. Political symbols.....	38
5.1.14. Luxury objects: State Cameos – carved vessels – works in the round .....	38
5.2. Problems with studying propaganda in ancient times with emphasis on engraved gems .....	39
5.2.1. Basic (technical) problems.....	39
5.2.2. Iconographical problems .....	41
5.2.3. Iconological, conceptual and interpretational problems .....	42

Part III Evidence

6. Beginnings (3rd-2nd centuries BC) .....	45
6.1. Etruscan and Italic tradition (self-presentation).....	46
6.2. Hellenistic influences.....	49

6.2.1. Portraits .....	50
6.2.2. Patronage.....	54
6.2.3. Collecting.....	55
6.2.4. Triumphs and processions.....	55
6.2.5. Iconography, forms and style.....	55
6.3. Roman tradition (family symbols, personal branding, commemoration, state propaganda) .....	56
6.3.1. Family symbols and references to familial stories on gems.....	56
6.3.2. Portraits on gems – Roman tradition.....	61
6.3.3. Roman generals, consuls, imperators and dictators?.....	62
6.3.4. Roman state propaganda: subjects related to wars and conquests (Gallic Wars, Punic Wars, Greek and Macedonian Wars, Social War 91-88 BC).....	66
7. Early 1st century BC .....	69
7.1. Lucius Cornelius Sulla .....	69
7.1.1. Seals of Sulla .....	69
7.1.2. Possible employment of gem engravers and collecting.....	71
7.1.3. Personal branding - portraits .....	72
7.1.4. Commemoration.....	74
7.1.5. Divine and mythological references.....	75
7.1.6. Political symbols .....	78
7.2. Gaius Marius .....	79
7.2.1. Triumph .....	79
7.2.2. Personal branding – portraits .....	80
7.2.3. Commemoration.....	81
7.2.4. Divine and mythological references.....	82
7.2.5. Political symbols.....	82
7.3. Lucius Licinius Lucullus .....	83
7.3.1. Diplomatic gift and collecting? .....	83
7.3.2. Personal branding and commemoration.....	84
7.3.3. Promotion of family and political symbols .....	84
7.4. Other politicians .....	85
7.4.1. Personal branding - portraits.....	85
7.4.2. Family symbols and references to familial stories on gems.....	89
7.4.3. Political symbols.....	92
8. Civil War: Pompey the Great, Julius Caesar and contemporaries.....	93
8.1. Pompey the Great .....	93
8.1.1. Triumph .....	93
8.1.2. Collecting.....	94
8.1.3. Possible gem engravers working for Pompey.....	95
8.1.4. Seals of Pompey .....	97
8.1.5. Portraits - personal branding, induction and manifestation of loyalty .....	98
8.1.6. Promotion of family .....	101
8.1.7. Promotion of the faction – Optimates.....	102
8.1.8. Commemoration.....	103
8.1.9. Divine and mythological references.....	104
8.1.10. Imitatio Alexandri .....	108
8.1.11. Political symbols.....	109
8.1.12. Luxury objects (State Cameos, vessels etc.) and religious propaganda.....	110
8.2. Julius Caesar.....	110
8.2.1. Collecting.....	111
8.2.2. Possible gem engravers working for Julius Caesar .....	111
8.2.3. Seal of Julius Caesar.....	113
8.2.4. Portraits – personal branding, induction and manifestation of loyalty.....	114
8.2.5. Promotion of and within the family.....	117
8.2.6. Promotion of the faction – Populares .....	118
8.2.7. Commemoration.....	119
8.2.8. Divine and mythological references.....	122
8.2.9. Political symbols.....	123

8.2.10. Luxury objects (State Cameos, vessels etc.) .....	126
8.3. Less significant politicians and women from the times of the Civil War .....	126
8.3.1. Collecting engraved gems and hiring engravers.....	126
8.3.2. Portraits – personal branding induction and manifestation of loyalty.....	128
8.3.3. Family symbols and references to familial stories on gems.....	129
8.3.4. Commemoration.....	130
8.3.5. Divine and mythological references.....	132
9. Post-Caesarian and Liberators’ Civil Wars (from death of Caesar to Octavian’s sole rule: 44-27 BC).....	133
9.1. The Pompeians .....	133
9.1.1. Seals of Gnaeus and Sextus Pompey.....	133
9.1.2. Possible gem engravers working for the Pompeians.....	134
9.1.3. Portraits – personal branding induction and manifestation of loyalty.....	135
9.1.4. Use of heritage.....	139
9.1.5. Promotion of the faction.....	141
9.1.6. Commemoration.....	141
9.1.7. Divine and mythological references.....	143
9.1.8. Political symbols.....	143
9.1.9. Luxury objects (State Cameos, vessels etc.) and religious propaganda.....	144
9.2. The Republicans.....	144
9.2.1. Possible gem engravers working for the Republicans .....	145
9.2.2. Portraits – personal branding induction and manifestation of loyalty.....	145
9.2.3. Use of heritage.....	148
9.2.4. Promotion of the faction.....	149
9.2.5. Commemoration.....	149
9.2.6. Divine and mythological references.....	149
9.2.7. Political symbols.....	150
9.2.8. Luxury objects (State Cameos, vessels etc.) and religious propaganda.....	150
9.3. The Caesarians .....	150
9.3.1. Octavian .....	151
9.3.1.1. Heir of Julius Caesar.....	152
9.3.1.2. Possible gem engravers working for Octavian .....	157
9.3.1.3. Seals of Octavian.....	159
9.3.1.4. Portraits – personal branding, induction and manifestation of loyalty .....	161
9.3.1.5. Promotion of family.....	167
9.3.1.6. Promotion of the faction.....	169
9.3.1.7. Commemoration.....	169
9.3.1.8. Divine and mythological references .....	179
9.3.1.9. Political symbols.....	187
9.3.1.10. Luxury objects (State Cameos, vessels etc.) and religious propaganda .....	192
9.3.2. Mark Antony .....	192
9.3.2.1. Collecting and personal seals .....	193
9.3.2.2. Possible gem engravers working for Mark Antony .....	193
9.3.2.3. Portraits – personal branding induction and manifestation of loyalty .....	195
9.3.2.4. Promotion of family.....	198
9.3.2.5. Promotion of the faction.....	199
9.3.2.6. Commemoration.....	199
9.3.2.7. Divine and mythological references .....	202
9.3.2.8. Political symbols.....	206
9.3.2.9. Luxury objects (State Cameos, vessels etc.) and religious propaganda.....	207
9.3.3. Marcus Aemilius Lepidus (triumvir) .....	208
9.3.3.1. Portraits – personal branding induction and manifestation of loyalty .....	208
9.3.3.2. Political symbols.....	208
9.4. Less significant politicians .....	208
9.5. Women and their propaganda significance on engraved gems.....	209
9.5.1. Portraits – personal branding .....	209
9.5.2. Divine and mythological references.....	211
10. Augustus (27 BC-AD 14) .....	214

10.1. Collecting .....	214
10.2. Gem engravers working for Augustus.....	215
10.3. The final seal of Augustus .....	216
10.4. Portraits – personal branding induction and manifestation of loyalty .....	217
10.5. Commemoration and State Cameos.....	219
10.6. Divine and mythological references.....	226
10.7. Mythological Foundations of the New Rome .....	230
10.8. Promotion of peace and prosperity .....	234
10.9. Luxury objects (State Cameos, cameo vessels etc.) and religious propaganda .....	238
10.10. Promotion of family and successors.....	241
10.11. Divus Augustus .....	247

Part IV Summary and conclusions

11. Provenance, provenience, production and distribution of propaganda gems.....	250
12. Statistics .....	298
13. Summary and conclusions: .....	309
13.1. Use of gems in triumphs.....	309
13.2. Collecting .....	310
13.3. Employment of gem engravers .....	311
13.4. Seals .....	312
13.5. Personal branding and self-promotion.....	313
13.6. Induction and manifestation of loyalty and support.....	316
13.7. Use of heritage .....	318
13.8. Promotion of family and oneself through origo .....	318
13.9. Promotion of faction.....	320
13.10. Commemoration.....	321
13.11. Religious, divine and mythological references.....	322
13.12. Political symbols and promotion of abstract ideas ( ordo rerum, Pax Augusta and aurea aetas ).....	324
13.13. Luxury objects: State Cameos – carved vessels – works in the round .....	326
13.13.1. State Cameos .....	326
13.13.2. Carved vessels .....	327
13.13.3 Works in the round .....	328
13.14. Final remarks.....	328

Part V Catalogue, figures, bibliography and indices

Catalogue.....	331
Figures .....	446
Figure credits.....	576
Bibliography .....	587
Index.....	602