Hendrik Kempt

Chatbots and the Domestication of AI

A Relational Approach

palgrave
macmillan

Contents

1 Introduction 1
1.1 Introduction 1
1.1.1 Smart Fridges and Other Reifications 2
1.1.2 What's to Come? 5
References 6

2 Methods 7
2.1 Method and Orientation 7
2.2 Concepts and Conceptual Analysis 9
2.3 Description and Evaluation of Technologies 10
2.4 Distinctions and Discovery in Philosophy of Technology 13
2.5 Reaches and Limits of Philosophy 15
2.6 Moral Philosophy, Morality, Ethics 16
2.7 AI Ethics 18
2.8 Conclusion 19
References 20

3 The Social Dimension 23
3.1 The Concept of the Social 23
3.2 Toward a Digital Society 25
3.2.1 Public Discourse 26
3.2.2 Private Relationships 27

3.2.3 Embodiment and the (Un)Importance of Physical Presence 29
3.2.4 Are "Facebook-Friends" Friends? 30
3.3 Assigning Social Descriptors 31
3.4 From Social Descriptors to Social Relationships 34
3.5 Agent-Network Theory, Attachment Theories 37
3.6 Gender as Relational Descriptor 39
3.7 Institutionalized Relationships and Relationships qua Humanity 40
3.8 Domestication as a Social Technique 41
3.9 Against Relational Arbitrariness 44
3.9.1 Supernatural Relationships 44
3.9.2 Para-social Relationships 45
3.9.3 Relationships with Aliens 46
3.10 Lessons for Imminent Changes or: The Rise of Human–Machine Relationships 47
References 49

4 The Basics of Communicative AI 53
4.1 Definitions 53
4.1.1 An Additional Distinction 55
4.1.2 Embodiment 58
4.1.3 Some Terminological Notes 60
4.2 A Short History of Chatbots 61
4.3 Is ML–AI the Future of Artificial Conversational Agents? 64
4.4 AI—General or Narrow? 67
4.5 The Economics of NLP 68
4.6 Turing Test and Its Human Limits 70
4.7 Conclusion: Why Think About AI in the First Place? 72
References 73

5 Artificial Social Agents 77
5.1 Rethinking Social Descriptors 77
5.1.1 The Appeals of Anthropomorphism 77
5.1.2 The Fallacy of Anthropomorphism 79
5.1.3 The Politics of Imitating Human Beings 80

5.1.4 Causing Harm—Privacy, Deception, Imbalance of Power 82
5.1.5 Legal Consequences for Anthropomorphism 89
5.1.6 Shaping the Industry Through Legislation 90
5.1.7 Conclusion 90
5.2 Philosophical Implications of (Non-)anthropomorphism 91
5.2.1 Relating to Non-human Entities 92
5.2.2 The Limits of Relating to Natural Entities 92
5.2.3 The Other and the Artificial—A Short Warning 93
5.2.4 Uncanny Others—Phenomenological Notes 94
5.2.5 The Artificial Other—An Instance of Objective Spirit-Conversations? 96
5.3 Patiency and Pragmacentrism 102
5.3.1 An Empirical Challenge to Moral Patiency 105
5.4 Relating to the Artificial 106
5.4.1 Problematic Approaches 107
5.5 A Second Domestication 119
5.5.1 Taking Stock 119
5.5.2 Another Social Expansion 120
5.6 From Social Descriptors to Social Agents 121
5.6.1 Some Counterarguments 122
5.6.2 Social Agents 123
5.6.3 More Concerns 125
5.6.4 Missing the Mark 126
5.6.5 *Case Study of Subtle Essentialism: Friendship and Friendship 126
5.7 A Second Domestication—Continued 128
5.8 Conclusion 129
References 131

6 Social Reverberations 137
6.1 Robot Rights 137
6.1.1 A 4-Way Matrix 138
6.1.2 The Relational Turn 142
6.1.3 The Return of Pragmacentrism 145
6.1.4 Conclusion—Robot Relational Protections 148
6.2 Human-Centered Design 148

6.2.1 Against Human-Centered Design? 149
6.2.2 Robot Relations, Human Realities 151
6.3 Including Non-human Agents in Normative Systems 152
6.3.1 Relational Real Estate 153
6.3.2 Legal and Digital Persons 154
6.4 New Social Fault Lines 155
6.4.1 Rogers' Bell Curve and Its Limits 157
6.4.2 On Robophobes and Robophiles 159
6.4.3 One Battleground: Robot Rights 161
6.4.4 A New Struggle for Recognition 162
6.4.5 Limits of Recognition 164
6.4.6 Some Ethical Deliberations 166
6.4.7 A Positive Argument 168
6.5 Conclusion 168
References 170

7 Conclusions 175
7.1 Thinking Forward 175
7.2 Acting Forward 178
Reference 179

Index 181