

Contents

List of figures	vii
List of contributors	viii
Introduction	1
Julie V. Gottlieb, Daniel Hucker and Richard Toye
1 Czechoslovakia, Czecho-Slovakia and the Munich Agreement	19
Mary Heimann
2 A very long shadow: the Munich Agreement in post-war Czechoslovak communist propaganda, ideology and historiography, 1948–89	44
Jakub Drábik
3 ‘Curs yapping round the dying stag’, or the rituals of fractured societies: Hungary and Poland in the vortex of the Munich Crisis of 1938	66
Miklos Lojko
4 ‘What, no chair for me?’ Russia’s conspicuous absence from the Munich Conference	90
Gabriel Gorodetsky
5 Churchill, Munich and the origins of the Grand Alliance	112
Richard Toye
6 Munich and the unexpected rise of American power	133
Andrew Preston

Contents

7	Mussolini, Munich and the Italian people Christian Goeschel	153
8	'England is pro-Hitler': German popular opinion during the Czechoslovakian crisis, 1938 Karina Urbach	171
9	Munich and the masses: emotional inflammation, mental health and shame in Britain during the September crisis Julie V. Gottlieb	192
10	Melanie Klein and the coming of the Second World War: a clinical archive, 1938 Michal Shapira	213
11	The poet's perspective on the Munich Crisis: 'news that STAYS news'? Helen Goethals	234
12	Public opinion, policy makers and the Munich Crisis: adding emotion to international history Daniel Hucker	251
13	France in the 'blue light' of Munich: popular agency, activity and the reframing of history Jessica Wardhaugh	273
	Index	296