

Contents

|                              |      |
|------------------------------|------|
| Foreword              | xiii |
| List of Abbreviations | xv   |

|  |          |
|--|----------|
| Introduction: Holocaust Traumata and TheirGenerational Legacies and Emanations | 1 |
| Generations: Structural Frameworks  | 3        |
| The Dialogical Nature of (Collective) Trauma  | 5        |
| Trauma Theory: Concepts, Implications, Outlooks                                     | 8        |
| Moving Trauma Theory into the Generation of Postmemory                              | 10       |
| Living in the Aftermath: Forms of Trauma  | 12       |
| Interstices between Individual and Cultural Trauma                                  | 14       |
| Trauma as Connective Force  | 17       |
| Structure of the Book   | 18       |

|  |           |
|--|-----------|
| 1 Narrating the Inexpressible: Wiesel's Night as aTestimonial Model   | 24 |
| God on the Gallows: Doublings of Faith  | 25        |
| Trauma in the Mirror: Identities in the Face of Trauma  | 32        |
| Paradigmatic Accuser: Connecting Audiences  | 34        |
| Witness in Search of Meaning and Silence  | 37        |
| Surviving and Remembering: Representing Trauma inthe Present   | 41        |
| 2 The Truth of Fiction in Louis Begley's Wartime LiesNarrated Identities: Fictionalization of the Self and ItsActual Facts | 49 |
| Negotiating Fact and Fiction in MeaningfulRepresentations for an Audience  | 53        |
| The Creation of Meaning and Its Passing Ownership   | 56        |
| (R/De-)Construction of Narrative and Real Identity  | 60        |
| Asserting Control by Narrative Means  | 65        |

|   |  |     |
|---|--|-----|
| 3 | Rescuing One's Memory from Past Traumata: Cheryl Pearl Sucher's The Rescue of Memory | 73  |
|   | Past and Present: Making a Stance of One's Own 74   |     |
|   | Photographs and Other Stories: Past Negatives and Healing Trauma 78                         |     |
|   | Generational Connections: Approaching First- and Second-Generation Trauma 81                |     |
|   | First-Hand Trauma in Second-Generation Writing 85   |     |
|   | Emancipation through Embedding: Establishing a Meaningful Presence of the Past 89           |     |
|   | Meaningful Incorporation of Past Trauma into Present Narratives 93                          |     |
| 4 | Encaustic Memories: Second-Generation Assertions in Rosenbaum's Second Hand Smoke    | 99  |
|   | Traumatic Impositions: Connecting First- and Second-Generation Trauma 100                   |     |
|   | Encountering the Ghosts: Generational Connections to the Past 103                           |     |
|   | Close Contact: Breaking Down Past and Present Distinctions 105                              |     |
|   | Imposing Trauma: Between Filial Rage and Generational Forgiveness 108                       |     |
|   | Individual and Cultural Authorship over Trauma Stories 110                                  |     |
|   | Damaged Goods: Navigating Parental Trauma and One's Own 111                                 |     |
|   | Exclusion from and Inclusion into Parental Narratives 113                                   |     |
|   | Remembering, Letting Go, and Incorporating the Past into the Present 115                    |     |
|   | Progressive and Tragic Narrative Outlook in Overcoming Trauma 118                           |     |
| 5 | Connecting Worlds: Narrative Networks in Horn's The World to Come                    | 124 |
|   | Generational Temporal Connections 125   |     |
|   | Choosing Narrative, Choosing Life 130   |     |
|   | Linguistic Connections to Translated Pasts 132  |     |
|   | Storied Bridges: Connecting Present, Past, and Future Worlds 135                            |     |
|   | Meaningful Narratives: Paper Bridges between (Past) Trauma and (Present) Meanings 137       |     |

|   |  |     |
|---|--|-----|
|   | Connecting Worlds: People as Stories  | 138 |
|   | Creating a Future from the Past   | 140 |
|   | Stories as Narrative Intersections between Generations                      | 142 |
| 6 | When Memory Fails: Fiction as History in Everything Is Illuminated   | 148 |
|   | Narrative Trajectories: Limitations of Fictional Meaning Creation           | 149 |
|   | Generational Positions: Midrashic Engagements and Circular Historicity      | 150 |
|   | (Re)constructing the Past: Interrelations between the Place and Its Stories | 152 |
|   | Language and Silence: Connective Phantasmagorias of Meaning                 | 155 |
|   | Workable Terminologies: Integrating Past-Tensed Facts                       | 158 |
|   | Fictional Records: Tracking Meanings between the Past and the Present       | 162 |
|   | Narrative Realities: Permeating Events and Stories                          | 165 |
|   | Imaginative Representation: Memory's Narrative Dependencies                 | 167 |
|   | Generational Catharsis in Dyadic, Generational Encounters                   | 169 |
|   | Conclusion: The Future of Trauma  | 172 |
|   | Index   | 181 |