

Contents

1	Introduction: The Pascal of the North, the French Kierkegaard . . . .	1
	Christian Philosophers or Philosophical Christians? . . . . .	7
	Pascal, Kierkegaard and Antiphilosophy . . . . .	14
	General Outline for an Antiphilosophy of Christianity. . . . .	20
2	Mocking Philosophy . . . . .	23
	A Philosophical Critique of Reason . . . . .	23
	Facing the Philosophers . . . . .	29
	A Popular Way of Thinking . . . . .	37
	Antiphilosophical Writing and Singularity. . . . .	42
	Adam Forma Futuri . . . . .	47
3	“Risk Is truth” . . . . .	53
	Denaturing. . . . .	53
	Betting for or Against . . . . .	54
	Stupidification. . . . .	57
	Faith Which Believes in God . . . . .	59
	Alone Against the World, Alone Before God . . . . .	65
	Suffering as Natural State. . . . .	69
4	“Hear God” . . . . .	75
	First Statement: “The External Is of No Use Without the Internal” . . . .	77
	Second Statement: “You Have Deposed the Pope... and Set ‘the Public’ on the Throne”. . . . .	85
	Third Statement: “Forget the World and Everything Except God”. . . . .	93
	Fourth Statement: Deus absconditus . . . . .	98
	Fifth Statement: “Deny, If You Will, That Christianity Is a Paradox!” . .	100

5	Contemporary Connections .....	105
	The Christian Event .....	106
	Towards a “Weak Antitheology”?.....	112
	Recharging Immanence.....	120
	Conclusion: Post-Jansenist Meditations .....	125
	Bibliography .....	135
	Index .....	141