

Contents

1	Introduction: Existentialism, Religious and Non-Religious	1
2	Reason and the Philosopher	43
2.1	Unamuno: Philosophizing beyond Reason	46
2.2	Berdyaeв: Philosophizing through Intuition	54
2.3	Marcel: Philosophizing from Experience	61
2.4	Conclusions	67
3	Abstract Man and Concrete Man	71
3.1	Unamuno: The Split Self	75
3.2	Berdyaeв: The Creative Self	85
3.3	Marcel: The Incarnate Self	94
3.4	Conclusions	101
4	Freedom and Contingency	107
4.1	Unamuno: Freedom as Ideal	110
4.2	Berdyaeв: Freedom as Spirit	123
4.3	Marcel: Freedom as Value	133
4.4	Conclusions	141

5 Faith and Intellection	145
5.1 Unamuno: Faith as Projection	152
5.2 Berdyaev: Faith as Self-Revelation	165
5.3 Marcel: Faith as Fidelity	170
5.4 Conclusions	178
6 Hope and Anxiety	183
6.1 Unamuno: The Search for Ontological Security	189
6.2 Berdyaev: Redemption from Nothingness	196
6.3 Marcel: Overcoming the Human Predicament	204
6.4 Conclusions	211
7 Love and Egotism	217
7.1 Unamuno: From Self-Love to Universal Love	219
7.2 Berdyaev: Love as Transfiguration	229
7.3 Marcel: From Possessive Love to Oblative Love	237
7.4 Conclusions	250
8 Individual and Community	255
8.1 Unamuno: Reconciling the Irreconcilable	259
8.2 Berdyaev: Towards a City of God	269
8.3 Marcel: Degradation and Its Antidote	278
8.4 Conclusions	284
9 Evil and Suffering	291
9.1 Unamuno: Suffering as the Discovery of Self and Other	296
9.2 Berdyaev: Sourcing Evil, Defying Suffering	304
9.3 Marcel: Evil as Experience	311
9.4 Conclusions	316
10 Immortality and God	323
10.1 Unamuno: Answering the Mortal Question	329
10.2 Berdyaev: The Noumenon in Eternity	339
10.3 Marcel: Thou Shalt Not Die	347
10.4 Conclusions	355

11 Conclusion: Existentialism and Christianity	365
Bibliography	403
Name Index	415
Subject Index	421