

Contents

Acknowledgments	vi
Introduction: Spinoza and the Simultaneity of Promise and Disappointment	1
1 Spinoza and F. H. Jacobi's Idealist Disavowal of Disappointment or How Romanticism Questions Idealizations of the Anthropocene	13
2 Rendering Dialectics Disappointing: Spinoza's Specter Haunting the Anthropocene from Romanticism to Postmodernism in Literature and Science	33
3 The Destructive Element: Keats and Conrad or How Romanticism Avows Idealism's Disavowed Disappointment	63
4 Modernity's Promise and Its Disavowed Disappointment: Hannah Arendt's Analysis of Totalitarianism Out of the Sources of Conrad's Heart of Darkness	89
5 The Trajectory of Conrad's Novel of Disavowed Disappointment: Hegel's Dialectics, F. Scott Fitzgerald's The Great Gatsby , and Saul Bellow's Ravelstein	123
6 Political Promises and History's Disappointments: Leo Strauss as the Esoteric Center of Bellow's Ravelstein and the Critique of Grand Political Promises	143
7 Disappointment in the Age of the Anthropocene: How D. H. Lawrence and Kafka Render Dialectics Inoperative	173
8 Disappointing Expectations of Redemption: Modern Jewish Writing and Thought	209
9 Conclusion: Expecting Disappointment, or, from Pynchon's, Roth's, Strauss's, and Vonnegut's Postmodernism to Anna Burns's Milkman and D. F. Wallace's The Pale King	239
Bibliography	269
Index	281