

Contents

Acknowledgments	viii
Introduction: Ireland, the Irish, and Biofiction	1
Part One Historical Context for the Rise of Biofiction
1 Oscar Wilde and the Invention of a Life-Creating Fiction	15
2 George Moore's The Brook Kerith and the Scandal of the Biographical Novel	55
Part Two Irish Figures as Biofictional Symbols
3 Roger Casement and the Transnational Origins of "Irishness"	99
4 Traumatized Agency in Eliza Lynch Biographical Novels	141
Part Three Theoretical Reflections about Biofiction
5 A Poetics of the Biographical Novel: Agency, History, Fiction	181
6 Why Names Matter: Concluding Reflections about Autonomy and Biofiction	205
Appendix: Interview with Mario Vargas Llosa	223
Notes	234
Bibliography	259
Index	268