

{ CONTENTS }

Acknowledgments	ix
List of Figures	xiii
Introduction: When Hegel Falls Silent	1
Trauma, Anarchy, and the Black Reconstruction of Democracy	3
Crisis and Freedom: The “newly created state”	4
Modernities and the Shadow Archive	6
The Mesmeric Diaspora	10
Temporal Currents: Afterwardsness	12
Traumatic Archives and the “Thing” to be Abolished	16
Never More	19
1. Crisis and Rehearsal in Frederick Douglass:
The Archive of the Interrupted Lecture	22
The Crisis of the Quotidian	28
Afterwardsness	32
Until Haiti Spoke: Haiti as the Stunning Rehearsal	35
Brain Theory and the Constitution of Man	40
From Object to Thing: “A system for which I have no name”	43
The “Thing” to be Abolished	45
Interlude: Moving Things	49
The Archive of the Interrupted Lecture: Immediacy	53
An Opening in the Texture of Time: The Miracle of Analogy	57
Paganini’s Violin	61
2. Who’s Afraid of Virginia’s Nat Turner? Mesmerism, Stowe,
and the Terror of Things	65
“The Political Ontology of Threat”	70
The Crisis of Things	73
“What a thing it is to be a Christian”	76
The Confessions of Nat Turner: Things Fall Apart	79
The Terror of Things Reading	81
Gutta-Percha Things	83
The Confessions of Margaret Garner: No Little Thing	84

3. “More than Lynched”: Du Bois, John Brown, and the Black Reconstruction of Democracy	87
A Death More than Death	87
The Wild Zone of Power	93
Haiti and the Stunning Rehearsal	96
Moses of the Color Line	98
The Crisis of Freedom and Circulation	99
Brown’s Magnetic Influence	101
The Look of Things	104
Temporal Delay and Afterwardsness at Harper’s Ferry	106
Postlude: Reconstructions in Analysis	112
The Real Question of Reconstruction	115
Abraham Lincoln and Andrew Johnson: Two Case Studies	118
Another Moses of the Color Line	122
The Fabric of Our Lives	127
Endnotes	131
Works Cited	167
Index	183