

CONTENTS

Permissions..... ix

Acknowledgements x

Introduction: Investigating Oppression, Social Justice and History in Contemporary Children’s and Young Adult Literature..... 1

Part One: Social Justice and Crime

“How I Wish That They Would Want Me”: Astrid Lindgren’s Exploration of Identity and Belonging in Her Children’s Detective Novel Rasmus and the Tramp..... 28

“I Act the Part of the Dutiful Daughter”: Child Sex Trafficking in Patricia McCormick’s Young Adult Novel Sold 54

Part Two: Writing Back to History

“Ship of Dreams”: Nicola Pierce’s Spirit of the Titanic and Irish Historical Young Adult Fiction 80

“No Ship is Going to Sink with My Family on It”: Voyaging Down Under in Jackie French’s Children’s Novel *How the Finnegans Saved
the Ship* 102

“You Have to Look Deeper”: Hidden Narratives of History and Identity
in Michael Morpurgo’s Children’s Novel A Medal for Leroy..... 126

Part Three: Postcolonialism and Gender

“The Rock-Bottom of My Family’s Fall from Grace”: The (Mis)Education of Tee in Merle Hodge’s Young Adult Novel Crick Crack, Monkey..... 150

“Last Girl Alive”: Gender, Environment and Postcolonialism
in Kirsty Murray’s Young Adult Dystopia Vulture’s Gate..... 173

“She Was Going, Our Kahu. She Was Going into the Deep Ocean”: Postcolonialism, Female Non-conformity and Ecocriticism in Witi Ihimaera’s Young Adult Novel The Whale Rider	198
Conclusion: Social Justice and Writing Back to History in Children’s and Young Adult Literature.....	220
Works Cited.....	224
Index	244