

Contents

Notes on Contributors	vii
Introduction ANDREW J. AUGÉ AND EUGENE O'BRIEN	1
1 Reading Heaney's Bog Poems in the Anthropocene ANDREW J. AUGÉ	16
2 Songs in Stone: Moya Cannon and Ecomusicology DONNA L. POTTS	35
3 'Balanced between Cliff and Flowers': The Enduring Earth Step in Moya Cannon's 'Word Pools' CHRISTINE CUSICK	54
4 Doing the Human Differently: Rabbits and Hares in Contemporary Irish Poetry KATHRYN KIRKPATRICK	75
5 'The Struck Lyre Ripples as a Stricken Voice': The Poetry of Derek Mahon from Landscape to Ecology JEFFERSON HOLDRIDGE	95
6 Heaney's Proffer: Tollund Man, Catastrophic Climate Change, and the Responsibility to Mourn BRENDAN CORCORAN	111

vi	Contents
7	A Tangle of Bright Fragments: Vegetal Life in Maurice Scully's Humming	130
	LUCY COLLINS
8	'When Species Meet': Scale and Form in the Poetry of Ciaran Berry and Moya Cannon	144
	EÓIN FLANNERY
9	The Corncrake, the Climate Crisis, and Irish-Language Poetry	162
	AILBHE NÍ GHEARBHUIGH
10	'A Stain from the Sky Is Descending': The Poetics of Climate Change in Irish Poetry	178
	EUGENE O'BRIEN
	Index	199