

Table of contents

Foreword	5
Giovanni Abete How phonotactic patterns contribute to the emergence and spread of /r/ metathesis in Neapolitan	7
Anita Berit Hansen Parisian French “unstable e” in word-initial syllables – engaged in a lexically diffused process of stabilization? Evidence from repeated real-time studies	25
Mikołaj Nkollo Empty and non-empty onsets in European Portuguese preverbal accusative clitic pronouns. A corpus-based inquiry into a diachronic sound change	45
Rosalba Nodari/Silvia Calamai Degemination in marginal Tuscan speech: temporal analysis in legacy speech data	67
Daniel Recasens The historical evolution of voiced palatoalveolar fricatives and affricates in Catalan	87
Margaret E. L. Renwick Mid vowel variation and contrast in regional Standard Italian	115
Assumpció Rost Bagudanch First considerations about /n/ flapping in the evolution of Spanish	139
John M. Ryan Open syllable drift and the evolution of Classical Latin open and closed syllable structure into Spanish, Italian and Neapolitan	161
Fernando Sánchez-Miret Elision of the definite article -/l/ in Romanian: setting out the issues	183