

Contents

LIST OF TABLES AND FIGURES	ix
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS	xiii
1. INTRODUCTION	1
1.1 Introduction	1
1.2 The Approach	6
1.3 The Survey	9
1.4 An Outline of the Book	11
2. ECONOMIC INEQUALITY: TRENDS AND POLICIES	14
2.1 Long-Run Changes in Economic and Social Inequality	14
2.2 Income Inequality in the Netherlands: 1938-1980	17
2.3 Wage and Incomes Policy 1945-1980	26
3. SOCIAL STRATIFICATION AND SOCIAL CO-ORDINATION	37
3.1 Introduction	37
3.2 Power and Dependence	38
3.3 Co-ordination and Stratification	41
3.4 Social Co-ordination	44
3.5 Social Stratification	49
3.6 Stratification: Unequal Distribution of Power or Unequal Distribution of Rewards	52
3.7 Prestige and the Legitimization of Inequality	55
3.8 Comparing Theories of Stratification and Co-ordination	63
3.9 The Relevance of Survey Research on Attitudes towards Income Inequality	70
4. ATTITUDES TOWARDS INCOME INEQUALITY: DESCRIPTION AND INTERPRETATION	76
4.1 Introduction	76
4.2 Measurement Techniques	77
4.3 Perceptions of the Distribution of Incomes and Perceptions of Developments in Income Relationships	80
4.3.1 Perception of Changes in Standards of Living in the Netherlands	80
4.3.2 Perception of Changes in One's Own Real Income	82
4.3.3 Perception of Changes in the Relative Income Positions of Specific Groups	86
4.3.4 Perception of Changes in Respondents' Own Relative Income Positions	87
4.3.5 Perception of the Degree of Income Inequality in the Netherlands	88
4.3.6 Perception of One's Own Position in the Income Distribution	94
4.4 Attitudes towards Income Inequality	96
4.4.1 Tendency to Equalize	96

4.4.2 Preferred Patterns of Change in Income Inequality	104
4.4.3 Income Levels	106
4.4.4 Changes in the Relative Income Positions of the Self-Employed, Unskilled Workers and People Receiving a Social Security Income	111
4.4.5 Income Rankings	117
4.5 Dysfunctions of Equalization	122
4.6 Changes in Respondents' Own Incomes	126
4.7 Conclusions	132
5. ANALYSIS OF ATTITUDES TOWARDS INCOME INEQUALITY	134
5.1 Introduction	134
5.2 Theoretical Approaches to the Study of Egalitarian Tendencies	135
5.3 The Theory of Mental Incongruities as an Interpretation of the Relationship between the Inequality Aversion Scale and the Variable Measuring the Tendency to Equalize	140
5.3.1 Theory	140
5.3.2 Operationalizations and Hypotheses	142
5.3.3 Analysis and Interpretation	143
5.4 Robinson and Kelley on Class and Status	146
5.4.1 Theoretical Discussion	146
5.4.2 Operationalizations and Hypotheses	147
5.4.3 Analysis and Interpretation	149
5.5 Robinson and Bell	154
5.5.1 Theoretical Discussion	154
5.5.2 Operationalizations and Hypotheses	156
5.5.3 Analysis and Interpretation	157
5.6 Della Fave	166
5.6.1 Theoretical Discussion	166
5.6.2 Operationalizations and Hypotheses	168
5.6.3 Analysis and Interpretation	174
5.7 The Determinants of the Tendency to Equalize: A Synthesis	184
6. THE ETHIC OF EQUALIZATION: AN INTERPRETATION OF THE RESEARCH RESULTS	202
6.1 Introduction	202
6.2 Differentiation and Equalization	202
6.3 Ambivalent Attitudes towards Income Inequality	206
6.4 Attitudes towards Income Distribution: A Synthesis	210
6.5 Conclusion	213
7. INCOME SATISFACTION, UTILITY AND FAIRNESS	215
7.1 Introduction	215
7.2 Utility	217
7.3 Fairness	224
7.4 Operationalizations and Empirical Results: Income Satisfaction and Utility	228
7.4.1 Rainwater/Duesenberry	228
7.4.2 Easterlin	230
7.4.3 Thurow/Morawetz	233
7.4.4 Van Praag/Kapteyn	234

7.4.5 Van Praag/Kapteyn: Preference Drift and Reference Drift	237
7.4.6 Van Praag/Kapteyn: The Relative Nature of Utility	239
7.4.7 Work Orientation and Income Satisfaction	242
7.5 Operationalizations and Empirical Results: Income Satisfaction and Fairness	243
7.6 Synthesis	248
7.7 Conclusions	251
8. ATTITUDES TOWARDS WAGE AND INCOME RESTRAINT	254
8.1 Introduction	254
8.2 Preference Orderings	256
8.3 Operationalizations	261
8.4 Empirical Evidence on Preference Orderings	263
8.5 Conditions for Participation; Reasons for Refusal	267
8.6 Who is Willing to Make Income Sacrifices?	276
8.7 Income Restraint and Income Redistribution	279
8.8 The General Attitude towards Income Restraint	282
8.9 Conclusions	292
9. INCOME INEQUALITY AND SOCIAL CONFLICT	295
9.1 Introduction	295
9.2 Theories of Industrial and Social Conflict	296
9.2.1 Empirical Approaches to the Study of Industrial and Social Conflict	296
9.2.2 Theories of Strikes	298
9.2.3 Theories of Revolutions	302
9.2.4 Inequality and Conflict	307
9.3 Attitudes towards Social Class and Social Conflict	309
9.3.1 Introduction	309
9.3.2 Attitudes towards Social Conflict	309
9.3.3 Attitudes towards Social Class	316
9.4 Operationalizations and Hypotheses	320
9.5 Analysis	326
10. SUMMARY AND POSTSCRIPT	344
10.1 Attitudes towards Income Inequality	344
10.2 Explaining Variation in Attitudes towards Inequality	345
10.3 Income Satisfaction	347
10.4 Income Restraint	348
10.5 Income Inequality and Social Conflict	349
10.6 An Assessment of Recent Developments	350
ANNEXES
A. SAMPLING PROCEDURES	357
A.1 Introduction	357
A.2 The Sampling Procedure	358
A.3 Accounting for the Addresses	363
A.4 The Nonresponse	366

B. THE REPRESENTATIVENESS OF THE SAMPLE	368
C. CALCULATION OF GROSS INCOME LEVELS FROM NET INCOME LEVELS	384
D. THE CONSTRUCTION OF ATTITUDE SCALES	387
D.1 Introduction	387
D.2 The Items	389
D.3 Methodological Issues	389
D.3.1 Correlated Dimensions	389
D.3.2 Missing Values and the Choice of the Appropriate Correlation Matrix	391
D.3.3 Criteria for the Selection of Items	392
D.3.4 How Many Factors?	393
D.3.5 Oblique Factor Solutions	395
D.3.6 Which Method of Factor Analysis?	396
D.4 The Division of the Items into Subgroups	397
D.5 Factor Analysis of the Whole Pool of 63 Items	403
D.6 Factor Analysis of the Whole Pool of Items: Direct Oblimin Rotation	406
D.7 Analysis of Subgroups	411
D.7.1 Introduction	411
D.7.2 Analysis of Items Measuring Inequality Aversion	413
D.7.3 Analysis of Items Measuring Discontent with Equalization	415
D.7.4 Analysis of Items Measuring the Attitude towards Income Restraint	416
D.7.5 Analysis of Items Measuring the Orientation to Work	418
D.7.6 Analysis of Items Measuring Activism	419
D.7.7 Analysis of Items Measuring Political Radicalism	421
D.7.8 Analysis of Items with Regard to Policy Measures	422
D.8 Basic Statistics of the Scales	424
E. CORRELATION MATRICES	425
F. THE QUESTIONNAIRE	438
NOTES	472
LIST OF REFERENCES	523