

Contents

List of Figures x

Acknowledgments xi

Introduction. Human, Person, Self: Blackness and Well-Being 1

1. The Ruled and Regulated Self: Medicine and Race Science in the Black New World 27
2. Ancient Ideals and the Healthy Self: Mary Ann Shadd's Plea for Emigration and Martin Robison Delany's Condition, Elevation, Emigration, and Destiny 51
3. The Self in Pain: Colonialism, Disability, and National Identity—Mary Prince, Sophia Pooley, and Lavina Wormeny 84
4. The Protective Self: Slave Sexual Health, Crime, and U.S. Legal Personhood—Celia's Murder Trial and Harriet Jacobs's Incidents 121
5. The Promising Self: Sexual Expression, Heroism, and Revolution—Frederick Douglass's "The Heroic Slave" and Martin Robison Delany's Blake 155

Conclusion. Black Intellectuals, Black Well-Being: Questions about the Future of Black American Literary Studies 194

Notes 201

Bibliography 213

Index 229