

Contents

Studies in Literacy, Family, Culture and the State:
an introduction	page vii
Preface	xi
1 The word of God	1
The concept of 'a'/'the' religion	4
Boundaries	4
Change	6
Obsolescence	8
Incorporation or conversion	10
Universalism and particularism	10
Cognitive contradictions in the general and the specific	13
Specialization: priests and intellectuals	16
Endowment and alienation	18
The twin bureaucracies	19
Organizational and structural autonomy	20
The Great and Little Traditions: spirit cults and world religions	22
Writing and religion in Ancient Egypt	26
Writing and religion in other early civilizations	35
Ritual and writing	42
2 The word of mammon	45
The origin of writing and the ancient economy	48
Writing and the temple economy	55
Writing and the palace economy	62
Writing and the mercantile economy	71
Writing and individual transactions	77
Writing and the economy in Africa	82

3	The state, the bureau and the file	87
	Bureaucracies	89
	The administration of early states with writing	92
	Internal administration	93
	External administration	97
	The administration of states without writing	99
	External administration	100
	Internal administration	103
	Writing in the colonial and national administrations	113
	Writing and the political process	119
4	The letter of the law	127
	The definition of law	129
	Courts, constables and codes	132
	Sources of law and changes of rule	135
	Legal reasoning	140
	Court organization	142
	Legal forms	144
	The expansion of writing and law in medieval England	159
	The letter and the spirit of the law	165
5	Ruptures and continuities	171
	Notes	186
	Bibliography	194
	Index	206