

Contents

Introduction . . . . .	1
Chapter I: Sociology and "The Stranger" . . . . .	11
1. Sociology and "The Stranger" . . . . .	11
1.1. "The Stranger" as an Ideal Type . . . . .	12
1.2. "The Stranger" as Stranger . . . . .	14
1.3. Simmel's Stranger . . . . .	16
2. Stranger as "Marginal Man" . . . . .	19
2.1. Park: Migration and Emancipation . . . . .	19
2.2. Stonequist: Internationalism and Ambivalence . . . . .	22
2.3. Hughes: Status Conflict and Inequality . . . . .	26
2.4. Siu: Ethnocentrism and Sojourn . . . . .	28
2.5. Rose: Small-town Duality . . . . .	29
2.6. Limits of the Marginal Man . . . . .	30
3. Stranger as Newcomer . . . . .	31
3.1. Wood: First Encounters . . . . .	31
3.2. Schutz: Reflexive Crisis . . . . .	35
4. Toward the Modern Stranger . . . . .	41
Chapter II: The Social Organization of Strangeness: Toward a Redefinition of Home . . . . .	51
1. The Lonely Crowd . . . . .	54
1.1. Tradition-direction . . . . .	54
1.2. Inner-direction . . . . .	56
1.3. Other-direction . . . . .	58
1.4. Communicative Normalization . . . . .	60
2. Stranger as Automation and Home as Prison: The Dilemma of Authoritarian Man . . . . .	64
3. The Homeless Mind: Home as Everywhere and Nowhere . . . . .	67
4. A Nation of Strangers: Home as Possibility . . . . .	70
5. The Migratory Elite: Education for Strangeness . . . . .	76
6. The Organization Man: Adaptability as a Way of Life . . . . .	78
6.1. Adaptability as a Way of Life . . . . .	81
7. Protean Man: Home as Myth . . . . .	84
8. A Redefinition: Home as a Moveable Feast . . . . .	89

Chapter III: On Being in Between: Observation and Marginality . . . . .	93
1. In Between . . . . .	94
1.1. Mapping . . . . .	98
2. Observation and Marginality . . . . .	108
2.1. Habitus . . . . .	108
2.2. Going Native . . . . .	113
2.3. Note-taking . . . . .	114
3. Through the Looking Glass . . . . .	118
4. The Trained Observer as the Modern Stranger . . . . .	121
Chapter IV: The Language of Membership. . . . .	123
1. The Search for Authentic Experience: The Publicity of Privacy . . . . .	129
2. Reflexivity and Reflectivity: The Image of Self in the Broken Mirror . . . . .	136
3. The Language of Membership . . . . .	139
3.1. The Semiological Chain . . . . .	139
3.2. Communicative Competence: Recognition and Negotiation. . . . .	142
Chapter V: Toward the Modern Stranger . . . . .	153
1. Implications . . . . .	154
1.1. Empirical Issues . . . . .	154
1.2. Theoretical Implications . . . . .	156
2. Conclusion. . . . .	159
Appendix A: Some Political Implications of the Modern Stranger. . . . .	161
References . . . . .	165
Index . . . . .	173