

Contents

Notes on contributors	vii
Preface	x
Abbreviations	xii

Part I Theories, transitions and tensions

1 Introduction: the Roman Suada Gualtiero Calboli and William J. Dominik	3
2 Ciceronian rhetoric: theory and practice John T. Kirby	13
3 Caecilius, the 'canons' of writers, and the origins of Atticism Neil O'Sullivan	32
4 The style is the man: Seneca, Tacitus and Quintilian's canon William J. Dominik	50

Part II Rhetoric and society

5 Field and forum: culture and agriculture in Roman rhetoric Catherine Connors	71
6 Gender and rhetoric: producing manhood in the schools Amy Richlin	90
7 The contexts and occasions of Roman public rhetoric Elaine Fantham	111

CONTENTS

Part III Rhetoric and genre

8	Towards a rhetoric of (Roman?) epic Joseph Farrell	131
9	Declamation and contestation in satire Susanna Morton Braund	147
10	Melpomene's declamation (rhetoric and tragedy) Sander M. Goldberg	166
11	Inter tribunal et scaenam : comedy and rhetoric in Rome Joseph J. Hughes	182
12	Eros and eloquence: modes of amatory persuasion in Ovid's Ars Amatoria Peter Toohey	198
13	Persuasive history: Roman rhetoric and historiography Robert W. Cape, Jr	212
14	Substructural elements of architectonic rhetoric and philosophical thought in Fronto's Epistles Michele Valerie Ronnick	229
	Bibliography	246
	General index	261
	Index locorum	267