

CONTENTS

Editors' Introduction	5
Preface	7
1. Discovering the Clinical Perspective	11
Some Historical Perspective	12
Contrast Between Ethnographic and Clinical as a Heuristic Device	20
The Issue of Professionalism and Ethics	21
The Plan for This Book	22
2. How the Clinical and the Ethnographic Relationship Differ	23
Who Initiates the Process of Inquiry?	23
What Implicit Model of the Organization Operates?	29
Whose Needs Drive the Process of Inquiry and Data Gathering?	32
The Psychological Contract in the Two Situations	33
Summary and Conclusions	39
3. Gathering, Analyzing, and Validating Data	39
Conceptual Focus and Type of Data Gathered	39
Determination of Scientific Validity	51
Clinical Data as a Source of Better Theory	54
Summary and Conclusions	55
4. Professional and Ethical Issues in Clinical Versus Ethnographic Work	56
How Should the Investigator Be Trained to Conduct Inquiry?	56
How Clinicians and Ethnographers Are Alike	59
Some Ethical Dilemmas in Fieldwork with Human Systems	63