

Contents

Editor's Foreword	7
Preface and Acknowledgements	10
Introduction	12
Chapter 1 – Major Themes and Issues	18
On confinement – madness, reason, and the asylum	19
The birth of the clinic	26
An archaeology of the human sciences	31
A theory of discourse	37
From archaeology to genealogy	41
Chapter 2 – Questions of Method and Analysis	47
Archaeology	48
Archaeology and science	51
Genealogy	54
Science and critique	60
On intellectuals	66

6 Table of Contents

Chapter 3 – Subjects of Power, Objects of Knowledge	71
Discipline and punish	74
Power, knowledge and the body	75
Power	76
Discipline and punishment	80
Discipline	85
The Carceral network and the formation of the human sciences	91
On the subject of sexuality	93
Sexuality and repression	95
Classes of sex	100
Power over life: a summary	102
Objectification, subjectification, and the human sciences	105
A genealogy of the subject	107
The ‘culture of self’	115
Chapter 4 – The State, Resistance and Rationality	121
Power and the state	122
On government	127
The question of resistance	132
Forms of rationality	136
Suggestions for Further Reading	145
Index	148

BARRY SMART has been Lecturer in Sociology in the Department of Sociological Studies, University of Sheffield, since 1973. He was formerly in the same role at Portsmouth Polytechnic, and was Visiting Fellow in the School of Humanities, Griffith University, Brisbane, Australia, in 1980.

He is the author of books and articles on social theory, methodology and sexuality. Current projects include books on ‘social theory and social change’ and ‘masculinity’, and research in the field of leisure studies.