

CONTENTS

1. FICTIONAL PERSONS AND FICTIONAL WORLDS	1
Fictional Persons	1
Fictional Existence	11
Possible Worlds	27
Fictional Worlds	34
2. FICTION VERSUS FANTASY, PRETENCE, AND MAKE-BELIEVE	40
Games and Language-Games	40
Make-Believe as Fantasy	49
Imagination	52
3. THE MORAL ATTITUDES	59
Deeds and Doers	59
Moral Attitudes as Mere Feelings	60
Blame as Accountancy or Record-Keeping	68
Difficulties with this Argument	69
Facts and Values	73
The Human World	79
4. MORAL RESPONSES TO FICTIONAL CHARACTERS	83
Radford's Argument	84
Weston's Argument	87
5. READERS AND SPECTATORS	103
Understanding, Emotion, and Moral Response	103
Fictional Narrator and Implied Reader	106
Access to Characters and the Form of our Attitudes	110
The Myth of the Disappearing Author	123
6. LIFE IN ART	127
Truth in Art	127
Fictional Life Not Continuous?	135
Order and Meaning in Art	138

7. BAD MORALITY, BAD ART?	154
Artistic and Moral Appraisal	154
Agreement and Acceptance	158
Art and Evil	162
Love and the Creative Act	164
The Artist and Moral Responsibility	168
Art and Negativity	174
8. LEARNING FROM LITERATURE	181
The Problem	181
The Cognitivist Theory	183
Telling and Showing	188
Moral Understanding and an Epistemology of Value	204
Morality, Language, and Culture	230
Ritual and Celebration	244
Bibliography	247
Index	255