

Contents

PART ONE: PRELIMINARIES

|          |   |           |
|----------|---|-----------|
| 1 | Introduction   | 3  |
| 2 | Wedding Reports in Local Newspapers:Introducing the Text Type | 10 |
|          | I. Family News in Local Contexts  | 10        |
|          | II. The Wedding Report: A First Description                               | 15        |
|          | III. The Historical Development and the Reports of the 1930s              | 21        |

PART TWO: KEY CONCEPTS AND APPROACHES

|          |   |           |
|----------|---|-----------|
| 3 | Text Type and Text Typology:Linguistic Approaches and Language Reality      | 29 |
|          | I. From Text to Text Typology   | 29        |
|          | II. Concepts and Definitions of Text Type   | 31        |
|          | III. The Study of Text Types  | 35        |
|          | IV. Conclusion  | 43        |
| 4 | Traditional Text Type:The Concept and Its Implications For Methods and Aims | 44 |
|          | I. The Concept of Traditional Text Type   | 44        |
|          | II. Problems of Fuzziness and Variability   | 50        |
|          | III. Further Methodological Questions   | 55        |
|          | IV. Conclusion: Summary of Methods and Aims   | 59        |
| 5 | The Wedding Report as a News Text Type   | 61 |
|          | I. Media Discourse  | 61        |
|          | II. News Style  | 63        |
|          | III. The News Report  | 67        |
|          | IV. Conclusion: Implications for the Analysis   | 77        |

PART THREE: TEXT-EXTERNAL CHARACTERISTICS

|          |  |            |
|----------|--|------------|
| 6 | Situational Context (I): Definition of Components   | 81  |
|          | I. The Concept of Situational Context                      | 81         |
|          | II. The Situational Context of the Wedding Report          | 88         |
|          | III. Conclusion  | 92         |
| 7 | Situational Context (II): Text Production Processes | 93  |
|          | I. News Text Production: A Dynamic Perspective             | 93         |
|          | II. Text Production Processes of the Wedding Report        | 95         |
|          | III. Conclusion  | 99         |
| 8 | The Function of the Wedding Report                  | 101 |
|          | I. Function, Text Type and News Text Types                 | 101        |
|          | II. The Wedding Report and Other Family News Types         | 104        |
|          | III. Conclusion  | 106        |

PART FOUR: CORPUS ANALYSIS

|           |   |            |
|-----------|---|------------|
| 9  | Content and Thematic Structure   | 109 |
|           | I. Content as a Defining Text Type Feature  | 109        |
|           | II. Quantitative Analysis: The Reports of the 1980s                               | 113        |
|           | III. Subthemes and Thematic Structure   | 126        |
|           | IV. The Wedding Reports of the 1930s  | 136        |
|           | V. Conclusion   | 144        |
| 10 | Schematic Structure (I):The Wedding Report and Van Dijk's News Schema | 145 |
|           | I. The Scope of Global Structures in Text Type Analysis                           | 145        |
|           | II. The Wedding Report Schema   | 149        |
|           | III. Illustration: Global Schemata of a Representative Report                     | 158        |
|           | IV. Conclusion  | 161        |

|  |            |
|--|------------|
| 11 Schematic Structure (II): The Realisation of Global Structures | 163 |
| I. The Headline  | 163        |
| II. The Lead   | 174        |
| III. The News Story  | 179        |
| IV. The Paragraph Structure  | 188        |
| V. Conclusion  | 196        |
| 12 Stylistic Microlevel Characteristics                           | 197 |
| I. Wedding Report and Style on the Linguistic Microlevel                 | 197        |
| II. Characteristics of News Style: A Selective Illustration              | 202        |
| III. Stereotyped Language in the Wedding Report                          | 205        |
| IV. Microlevel Standardisation: Evaluation and Comparison                | 222        |
| V. Objective vs Subjective Microlevel Features                           | 236        |
| VI. Conclusion   | 244        |

PART FIVE: OUTLOOK AND CONCLUSION

|   |            |
|---|------------|
| 13 Outlines of a Wider Perspective               | 247 |
| I. Family News Types and Local Communities              | 248        |
| II. Frames, Text Types and the Media                    | 251        |
| III. Event and Text Type: Two Competing Wedding Frames? | 255        |
| 14 Conclusion                                    | 258 |
| Appendices  | 267        |
| Bibliography  | 299        |
| Subject Index   | 309        |