

Contents

Introduction	ix
I Syntactic Aspects of Lexical Variation	1
Lexical and Nonlexical Noun Incorporation Mark C. Baker	3
Extraction, Lexical Variation, and the Theory of Barriers Gereon Müller and Wolfgang Sternefeld	35
Lexical Decomposition in Syntax Arnim von Stechow	81
II Model-Theoretical Approaches to Text Semantics	119
The Epsilon Operator and E-Type Pronouns Urs Egli and Klaus von Heusinger	121
Tense and the Logic of Change Reinhard Muskens	147
The Understanding and Interpretation of Text Aarne Ranta	185
III Lexical Meaning and Concepts	201
Describing Verbs of Motion in Prolog Bruce Mayo	203
Partir c'est quitter un peu : A two-level approach to polysemy Peter E. Pause, Achim Botz and Markus Egg	245
Polysemy in a Two-Level-Semantics Christoph Schwarze and Marie-Theres Schepping	283
Lexical and Conceptual Structures in Expressions for Movement and Space: With reference to Japanese, Korean, Thai, and Indonesian as compared to English and German Götz Wienold	301

---

IV The Historical Dimension	341
A Contrastive Study of Vocabulary Growth in Different Languages: French, English, Chinese, and Japanese	343
Tatsuo Miyajima
Names Index	359
Topical Index	363