

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	x
About the authors	xi
1 Introduction	1
Part I: Approaching comics	7
2 Formalist approaches	9
Early definitions and approaches	10
Semiotic approaches	18
Comics as language	29
Conclusion	32
Notes	32
Works cited	33
3 Ideological and material approaches	37
Political and ideological perspectives	37
Colonialism and comics	40
Superheroes and ideology	43
Cultural legitimacy as ideology	46
Material and sensory issues	52
Conclusion	55
Notes	56
Works cited	56
Part II: Histories and cultures	59
4 Early criticism and legitimation	61
Early comics criticism in America	61
The American Comics Code	66
Retrospective evaluations and revisionist readings	70
Legitimizing the 'Ninth Art'	78
Legitimation issues	80

Contents

Transatlantic interactions between comics and bande dessinée	83
Comics exhibitions	85
Conclusion	86
Notes	87
Works cited	87
5 Historical approaches	91
Global	91
Europe	95
North America, Canada and South America	102
Asia	109
Africa	115
Australasia	118
Transnational	121
Conclusion	126
Notes	126
Works cited	127
Part III: Production and reception	133
6 Creators, imprints and titles	135
Old masters	135
Serialized comics	137
Women comics artists	139
Graphic novelists	142
Iconic magazines and publishers	146
Conclusion	150
Notes	151
Works cited	152
7 Audiences and fan cultures	155
Historical audience studies	155
Comics readers and identities	157
Fan studies in comics	164
Conclusion	171
Notes	171
Works cited	171

Part IV: Themes and genres	177
8 Thematic approaches	179
Documentary, trauma and memory	179
Diversity: Ethnicity and religion	186
Children in comics	190
Intermedial and transmedial approaches	191
Conclusion	194
Notes	195
Works cited	195
9 Popular genres	199
Genre	199
Superheroes	201
Horror	206
Romance	210
Conclusion	214
Notes	214
Works cited	214
10 Outside the mainstream	219
Underground comix in North America and the UK	219
Autobiographix	222
French-language alternative and small press publications	228
Artists' collectives	229
Fanzines and alternative practices	234
Conclusion	237
Notes	237
Works cited	238
11 General reference guides and textbooks	241
Teaching comics	241
Making comics	245
General and critical reference works	246
Works cited	251
12 Conclusion	253
Index	256