

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction	1
Chapter One: Postcolonial Literature and Comparative Literature	9
Chapter Two: Mimicry and Fragmented Identities in V.S. Naipaul's The Mimic Men and Toni Morrison's The Bluest Eye	31
Chapter Three: Memory as a Reflection of Cultural Identity in V.S. Naipaul's The Enigma of Arrival and Toni Morrison's Beloved	69
Chapter Four: A Journey from Unhomeliness to Hybridity in V.S. Naipaul's Half a Life and Magic Seeds and Toni Morrison's Home : Hybridity: What and Why?	103
Chapter Five: Gender in Naipaul and Morrison	137
Chapter Six: Naipaul and Morrison: Some Conclusions and New Comparative Outlooks	171
Bibliography	185
Index	199
About the Author	203