

Contents

General editors' preface	page xi
Acknowledgments	xiv
Translator's introduction	xv

PART I

The Blomberg logic

Introduction to the doctrine of reason according to the thoughts of Professor Kant	5
Introduction to the doctrine of reason according to the Author	15
The doctrine of reason itself	27
The first principal part
Of learned cognition	27
The first section
Of learned cognition universally in general	27
The second section
Of the extensiveness of learned cognition	49
The third section
Of the quantity of learned cognition	57
The fourth section
Of the truth of learned cognition	61
The fifth section
Of the clarity of learned cognition	82
The sixth section
Of the certainty of learned cognition	112

CONTENTS

The seventh section
Of practical learned cognition	200
The eighth section
Of learned concepts	201
The ninth section
Of learned judgments	220
The tenth section
Of learned inferences of reason	227
The second principal part
Of the method of learned cognition	235
The third principal part
Of learned expositions	239
The first section
Of the use of words	239
The second section
Of the learned style of writing	240
The third section
Of a learned speech	240
The fourth section
Of learned writings	242
The fourth principal part
Of the character of a learned man	244

PART II

A. The Vienna logic

Prolegomena	251
History of logic	257
Tractatio logices	265

B. The Hechsel logic (in part)

(Text)	381
--------	-----

CONTENTS

PART III

The Dohna-Wundlacken logic

(Contents as in manuscript of original text)

Prolegomena	431
Tractatio ipsa	438
The doctrine of elements	440
Consciousness of representation, or apperception	440
Beautiful cognition	443
Perfections of cognition	446
Extensiveness of learned cognition	448
Pedantry	453
Quantity of learned cognition	454
Fruitfulness and importance of a cognition	455
Truth of learned cognition	455
Clarity of cognition	461
Obscure representations	465
Comprehensible and incomprehensible	466
Certainty of cognition	467
Prejudices	472
Logical egoism	475
The probable	477
Persuasion and conviction	481
Proofs	482
Sources of our cognition	483
Practical cognition	485
Concepts	485
Definitions	489
Rules for definitions	491

CONTENTS

Division of concepts	493
Judgments	495
Categorical judgments	496
Condition of unconditioned judgments	497
Immediate inferences	501
Inferences of reason	504
Categorical inferences of reason	505
Hypothetical inferences of reason	508
Dilemma	508
Inference by induction and analogy	508
Sophisms	508
Sorites	509
Mistakes in proof	510
Topic	510
Doctrine of method	511
Division of methods	511
Meditation	512
Modes of exposition	514
Division of argumentation	514
Character of the learned man	515
Something further concerning meditation	515

PART IV

The Fäsche logic

Preface	521
Introduction	527
I. Universal doctrine of elements	589
First section
Of concepts	589

CONTENTS

Second section
Of judgments	597
Third section
Of inferences	609
II. Universal doctrine of method	630

PART V

Appendixes

A. German–English glossary	643
B. English–German glossary	649
C. A concordance of G. F. Meier’s Excerpts from the Doctrine of Reason (with Kant’s Reflections) and the Jäsche logic	655
D. A concordance of the translated transcripts with G. F. Meier’s Excerpts from the Doctrine of Reason	661
Explanatory notes	675
Name index	685
Subject index	688