

Contents

List of contributors	xvii
Foreword	xxi
Acknowledgement	xxiii
Editor Biographies	xxv
Introduction	xxvii
SECTION 1 The Person in Person-Centred Practice	1
Chapter 1 The person in person-centred practice	3
Brendan McCormack, Tanya McCance, and Jan Dewing
Introduction	4
Who am I?	4
What does it mean to be a person?	6
Personhood	7
Persons, personhood and person-centred practice	10
Conclusion	10
Summary	11
References	11
Further reading	11
Chapter 2 What is person-centredness?	13
Brendan McCormack, Tanya McCance, and Suzanne Martin
Introduction	14
The values of person-centredness	15
Person-centredness and related concepts	16
Person-centred practice	17
Person-centred culture	19
Conclusions	20
Summary	20
References	21
Further reading	22
Chapter 3 The Person-centred Practice Framework	23
Tanya McCance and Brendan McCormack
Introduction	24
What is person-centred practice?	24

	Introducing the Person-centred Practice Framework	25
	Prerequisites	26
	The practice environment	27
	Person-centred processes	29
	Person-centred outcomes	29
	Applying the framework in practice	30
	Conclusions	30
	Summary	30
	References	31
	Further reading	32
Chapter 4	Knowing self	33
	Donna Brown and Savina Tropea
	Introduction	34
	Understanding and defining self: different perspectives	34
	Different aspects of self	35
	The journey through 'knowing self': tools and approaches	36
	The importance of self-knowledge for developing healthful cultures	37
	Using reflection to know self	38
	Creating the conditions to know self and others	38
	Conclusion	39
	Summary	39
	References	40
Chapter 5	Flourishing as humans	41
	Brendan McCormack, Tanya McCance, and Jan Dewing
	Introduction	42
	What is human flourishing?	43
	Conditions for human flourishing	45
	A resting place	49
	Summary	49
	References	50
	Further reading	50
Chapter 6	Professionalism and practising professionally	51
	Caroline Gibson, Kath MacDonald, and Deirdre O'Donnell
	Introduction	52
	Practising professionally	52
	Standards for professional practice	53
	Maintaining professional standards	54
	Legal and ethical responsibilities	55
	Person-centredness, professionalism and organisational structures	56
	Creating person-centred cultures	57
	Conclusion	58
	Summary	58
	References	60

Chapter 7	The future nurse, midwifery and allied health professional	61
	Suzanne Martin, Charlotte McArdle, and Ed Jesudason
	Introduction	62
	Professionalism and person-centredness	63
	Step 1 – Build the initial team	65
	Step 2 – Identify what we can do	65
	Step 3 – Co-create the vision	65
	Step 4 – Co-design the solution	65
	Step 5 – Co-delivery	66
	Step 6 – Co-evaluate	66
	Challenges to professionalism	66
	Curricula content	67
	Conclusion	69
	Summary	69
	Acknowledgements	70
	References	70
	Further reading	70
SECTION 2	Being Person-centred	71
Chapter 8	Communicating and relating effectively	73
	Duncan Pentland, Helen Riddell, and Lindsey Regan
	Introduction	74
	Framing communication – definitions and basic concepts	75
	Fundamental ideas in person-centred communication	76
	Strategies for putting person-centred communication into action	79
	Conclusion	80
	Summary	81
	References	81
	Further reading	81
Chapter 9	Systems to support person-centred decision making	83
	Amanda Stears and Dawn Jansch
	Introduction	84
	What is decision making?	84
	Service user perspectives	86
	Person-centred decision making	87
	The value of shared decision making	88
	Multidisciplinary team	88
	Organisational decision making	90
	Summary	91
	References	92
	Further reading	92
Chapter 10	Connecting with others	93
	Brighide Lynch, Derek Barron, and Lesley McKinlay
	Introduction	94
	Relationship with self: emotional intelligence	95

Relationship with colleagues	97
Relationships with the person and their family	98
Conclusion	100
Summary	100
References	100
Further reading	101

Chapter 11 The physical environment 103

Suzanne Martin, Assumpta Ryan, and Fiona Maclean

Introduction	104
Ward layout and room type	105
Acoustic environment (noise reduction)	105
Lighting (natural daylight and artificial light)	106
Views, exposure and access to nature	106
How can a better environment be provided to service users?	109
Conclusion	110
Summary	110
References	110
Further reading	111

Chapter 12 Working with persons' beliefs and values 113

Suzanne Martin, Lisa Luhanga, and Catherine Wells

Introduction	114
Beliefs, values and person-centredness	114
Personal beliefs and values	115
Professional values	115
Respecting all beliefs and values	116
Contemporary considerations and challenges	117
Beliefs and values in person-centred practice	118
Conclusion	119
Summary	119
References	119
Further reading	120

Chapter 13 Engaging meaningfully and effectively 121

Ailsa Espie, Georgios Tsigkas, and Donna Brown

Introduction	122
Engaging authentically	122
Levels of engagement	123
Human agency and reflexivity	124
Challenging the status quo and non-person-centred practices	125
Conclusion	126
Summary	127
References	127
Further reading	127

Chapter 14	Sharing in decisions	129
	Jean Daly Lynn, Assumpta Ryan, and Fiona Kelly
	Introduction	130
	Shared decision making with service users	130
	Shared decision making in action	131
	Opportunities and challenges with shared decision making	133
	Shared decision making and cognitive impairment	135
	Conclusion	136
	Summary	137
	References	137
	Further reading	138
Chapter 15	Being sympathetically present	139
	Tanya McCance, Brendan McCormack, Karl Tizzard-Kleister, and Lynn Wallace
	Introduction	140
	Understanding sympathetic presence	141
	Being present in the moment	143
	Conclusion	145
	Summary	145
	References	146
	Further reading	146
Chapter 16	Providing holistic care	147
	Neal F. Cook and Michelle L. Elliot
	Introduction	148
	The concept of holism	149
	People, healthcare and holism	150
	Factors influencing holistic provision of care	151
	Providing holistic care	152
	Upholding the holistic gaze	153
	Conclusion	155
	Summary	155
	References	156
	Further reading	156
SECTION 3	Person-Centredness in Health and Social Care Systems	157
Chapter 17	Sociopolitical context in person-centred practice	159
	Deborah Baldie, Tanya McCance, and Brendan McCormack
	Introduction	160
	Strategic leadership	160
	Health and social care policy	161
	Strategic frameworks	162
	Workforce developments	163
	Conclusion	166

Summary	167
References	167
Further reading	168

Chapter 18 Being person-centred in the acute hospital setting 169

Christine Boomer, Bill Lawson, and Robert Brown

Introduction	170
An overview of person-centredness in the acute hospital setting	170
Person-centred moments versus consistent person-centred practice	171
The impact of the practice environment on person-centredness in acute settings	172
How can we move beyond person-centred moments in acute hospital settings?	174
Conclusion	175
Summary	176
References	176
Further reading	177

Chapter 19 Person-centred rehabilitation 179

Jackie Gracey and Ailsa McMillan

Introduction	180
What is rehabilitation?	181
Who can participate in person-centred rehabilitation?	183
Person-centred processes	184
Conclusion	187
Summary	187
References	188
Further reading	188

Chapter 20 Being person-centred in community and ambulatory services 189

Caroline Dickson and Lorna Peelo-Kilroe

Introduction	190
The rich learning environments in community contexts	191
Knowing what matters to you being in the community	191
Stepping stones to enable you to be your best self in practice	193
Community contexts as flourishing workplaces	194
Conclusion	196
Summary	196
References	197
Further reading	197

Chapter 21 Experiencing person-centredness in long-term care 199

Kevin Moore and Fiona Kelly

Introduction	200
Residential and long-term care: supporting quality of life	201
Choosing the right long-term care setting and holding that difficult conversation	202

The transition from 'home' to 'home'	203
Nursing and caring expertise in residential care settings	204
Dignity and the importance of effective communication and interpersonal skills	205
Conclusion	206
Summary	206
References	207
Further reading	208
Chapter 22 Being person-centred in mental health services	209
David Banks, Josianne Scerri, and Jessica Davidson
Introduction	210
How rights-based approaches can inform person-centred care of people experiencing mental distress	210
Implementing the Person-centred Practice Framework in the context of mental distress and trauma informed practice	213
The necessity of developing a shared understanding	216
Story telling as a means of therapeutic engagement	216
Conclusion	217
Summary	217
References	218
Chapter 23 Person-centred support for people with learning disabilities	219
Owen Barr, Martina Conway, and Vidar Melby
Introduction	220
Definition of a person with a learning disability	221
Person-centred principles that have underpinned services for people with learning disabilities	222
The ongoing need for a person-centred framework that is evidenced in practice	223
Delivering person-centred health and social care services for people with learning disabilities	224
Conclusion	227
Summary	227
References	228
Further reading	228
Chapter 24 Being person-centred in maternity services	229
Honor MacGregor and Patricia Gillen
Introduction	230
Contemporary maternity care	230
Being professionally competent as a midwife	231
Power sharing in person-centred maternity care	232
Enabling person-centred maternity care through shared decision making	233
Conclusion	234
Summary	235
References	235
Further reading	236

Chapter 25 Being person-centred in children's services 237
Ruth Magowan and Brian McGowan

Introduction	238
Person-centred processes	239
Working with the person's beliefs and values	240
Engaging authentically	240
Sharing decision making	241
Being sympathetically present	242
Working holistically	242
Conclusion	244
Summary	245
References	245
Further reading	246

Chapter 26 Being person-centred when working with people living with long-term conditions 247
Anne Williams, Suzanne Martin, and Vivien Coates

Introduction	248
The context and challenges of living with a long-term condition	248
Healthcare system design	249
Supporting people with long-term conditions	251
Assessment in the context of providing holistic care	253
Critical perspectives	254
Conclusion	255
Summary	255
References	255
Further reading	256

Chapter 27 Palliative and end of life care services 257
Antonia Lannie, Erna Haraldsdottir, and Juliet Spiller

Introduction	258
Key strategic drivers reflecting the person-centred macro context of palliative care	259
Prerequisites: being a person-centred practitioner in palliative care	259
The context of palliative care and person-centred practice	261
Person-centred processes in palliative care	262
Challenges to person-centred outcomes in palliative care	263
Summary	264
References	264
Further reading and resources	265

SECTION 4 Approaches to Learning and Development for Person-Centred Practice 267

Chapter 28 Being an active learner 269
Jan Dewing and Brighide Lynch

Introduction	270
What is active learning?	270

Our primary senses as the foundation for learning	271
Multiple intelligences	271
What makes active learning necessary for human flourishing?	272
Active learning and the Person-centred Practice Framework	273
Active learning in class-based learning	274
Active learning in the workplace	274
Conclusion	277
Summary	277
References	277
Further reading	278
 Chapter 29 Knowing and becoming through reflective learning	 279
Donna Brown and Kristina Mountain
Introduction	280
Reflection for person-centred practice	280
In pursuit of knowing and becoming	281
Creating communicative spaces	282
Working with the challenges of knowing and becoming	284
Linking knowing and becoming to experiences from practice	284
Creating the conditions for knowing and becoming	285
Conclusion	286
Summary	286
References	287
Further reading	287
 Chapter 30 Becoming a critical thinker	 289
Neal F. Cook, Sonyia McFadden, and Lindsey Regan
Introduction	290
What is critical thinking?	290
The importance of critical thinking in practice	291
Enablers and inhibitors of critical thinking	293
The journey of becoming and being a critical thinker	295
Understanding self in becoming and being a critical thinker	296
Conclusion	296
References	297
Further reading	297
 Chapter 31 Developing and supporting practice educators	 299
Fiona Stuart, Lucia Ramsey, and Jacinta Lynch
Introduction	300
Person-centred learning cultures	301
Learning processes	302
Evaluation processes	304
Evaluating your role and responsibility	305
Summary	306
References	306
Further reading	307

Chapter 32	Being curious through research and knowledge exchange	309
	Cathy Bulley, Margaret Smith, and Alison Williams
	Introduction	310
	Person-centred values and principles in research and knowledge exchange	311
	Starting off: developing ideas for research and knowledge exchange through conversation	311
	Continuing: developing ways of addressing research questions and knowledge exchange topics	313
	Moving forward: ensuring that our work has positive impacts on people	315
	Conclusion	316
	Summary	316
	References	316
	Further reading	317
Chapter 33	Being a lifelong learner	319
	Lindesay Irvine, Patricia Gillen, and Owen Barr
	Introduction	321
	Lifelong learning and its relationship to person-centredness	321
	Practice learning as adult learners	326
	How we learn, and its effect on practice learning	327
	Developing reflexivity in learning	328
	Conclusion	329
	Summary	329
	References	330
	Further reading	330
Chapter 34	The future of person-centred practice – a call to action!	331
	Brendan McCormack, Tanya McCance, Donna Brown, Cathy Bulley, Ailsa McMillan, and Suzanne Martin
	The need for conceptual and theoretical clarity	332
	The KISS Principle	335
	Resting place	336
	References	336
	Index	339