

Contents

Preface	xi
1 The problem of metaphysics	1
Historical background: the Enlightenment and its problems	2
Kant's life	9
Kant's pre-Critical vacillation: the indispensable dreams of metaphysics	13
Is metaphysics possible? (The Preface)	20
The structure of the Critique	25
2 The possibility of objects	27
The Critical problem: Kant's letter to Herz	27
Interpretations of Kant: analytic and idealist	30
The problem of reality	33
Kant's Copernican revolution	37
3 How are synthetic a priori judgements possible? (The Introduction)	51
Kant's logical formulation of the problem of metaphysics	51
Synthetic apriority: objections and replies	58

CONTENTS

4 The sensible conditions of objects (The Aesthetic)	65
Kant's analysis of cognition	66
The sensible form of experience: space and time	70
Space and time as a priori intuitions: Kant's arguments	75
Space and time in the Analytic	84
5 Transcendental idealism	87
The doctrine of transcendental idealism	88
The distinctiveness of transcendental idealism	96
Kant's ontological denial	99
The argument for transcendental idealism in the Aesthetic	101
Trendelenburg's alternative	107
The argument for transcendental idealism in the Antinomy	111
6 The conceptual conditions of objects (The Analytic)	115
The argument of the Analytic: questions of method	115
The relation of thought to objects: the apriority of conceptual form (Idea of a Transcendental Logic)	125
The elements of thought: the categories (The Clue to the Discovery of all Pure Concepts of the Understanding)	131
The preconditions and source of conceptual form: the subject–object relation (The Transcendental Deduction)	135
The specific conceptual form of human experience: causally interacting substances (The Schematism, The Analogies, The Refutation of Idealism)	165
Transcendental arguments, transcendental idealism and Kant's reply to the skeptic	188
Measurement and modality (The Axioms of Intuition, The Anticipations of Perception, The Postulates of Empirical Thought)	196

Transcendent objects: the concept of noumenon (The Ground of the Distinction of all Objects in general into Phenomena and Noumena)	198
Kant's critique of Leibniz's method (The Amphiboly)	206
7 Unknowable objects (The Dialectic)	209
Beyond the land of truth	209
Transcendental illusion: reason's ideas of the unconditioned	214
Reason as regulative (The Appendix to the Dialectic)	221
The dialectical inferences of transcendent metaphysics (The Paralogisms, The Antinomy, The Ideal of Pure Reason)	225
Transcendental idealism in the Dialectic I: the dissolution of theoretical reason's contradictions (The Paralogisms, The Antinomy)	243
Transcendental idealism in the Dialectic II: the problematic intelligible world (The Paralogisms, The Antinomy, The Ideal of Pure Reason)	255
Kant's destructive achievement	267
8 The meaning of transcendental idealism	269
Kant's empirical realism: the nature of appearance	271
The existence of things in themselves	280
Things in themselves and appearances	289
The transcendental ideality of the self	298
Entering into, and remaining within, the Kantian system	303
9 The complete Critical system (The Canon of Pure Reason)	307
'What ought I to do?' The moral law	308
'What may I hope?' From morality to God	315
The unity and ends of Reason	319

CONTENTS

10 The reception and influence of the Critique	327
The immediate reception of the Critique	328
Absolute idealism: Fichte, Schelling and Hegel	331
Schopenhauer	341
Kant and twentieth-century philosophy	342
Bibliography	349
Index	365