

Contents

Preface	viii
Acknowledgements	x
Introduction	1
1 The Problem of Affect and Meaning in Music	7
Musicology: The Question of Context and Text	8
Sound in Music: Fixity and Negotiation of Meaning	14
The Move to Structuralism	23
2 Music and Cultural Theory	28
Subcultural Theory and the Question of Style	28
Raymond Williams and the Social Character of Art	31
The Structural Homology and the Analysis of Music	34
The Structural Homology and its Problems	39
Music, Structuralism and Semiology	41
The Introduction of the Subject	48
3 Music and Psychoanalysis	56
Post-Freudian Analyses of Music	57
Lacan and the Linguistic Production of the Subject	64

4	Theorizing Difference in Language and Music	73
	Kristeva, Language and the Subject	74
	Difference in Language	80
	Difference in Music	85
5	Music as a Medium in Sound	95
	Primary Signification and Secondary Signification	103
	Music as a Structured and Structuring Medium	108
	The Technology of Articulation	117
6	Music as Structure	125
	The Auditory Environment, Music and Language	125
	Auditory Time-Space in the Service of Music as a Structure	129
	Music as Structure	136
	Addendum 1 The Hegemony of Language in Understanding Music	139
	Addendum 2 The Generalizability of Zuckerlandl's Arguments	150
7	Music's Semiological Moment	153
	The Sonic Saddle	159
8	Music: A Performative Semiological Model	169
	Terms and Relations	170
	Fixity and Negotiation in Music	174
	Music and the Body	178
9	Music and Language in the Constitution of Society	183
	The Material Basis of Signifying Practices	185
	Language, Music and Imagination	188
	The Material and the Symbolic	192
	Music and Language in the Constitution of Society	194
	Conclusion	200

Contents

vii

10 Towards a Sociology of Sound	204
The Signifying Potential of Sound	205
'Music' and 'Language' as Discursive Formations	206
Power in 'Music', Power in 'Language'	213
'Language' and the Conscious, 'Music' and the Unconscious	216
Bibliography	218
Index	225