

CONTENTS

SERIES EDITOR'S PREFACE	ix
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS	xi
INTRODUCTION	xiii

PART I KULTURKRITIK

1 Against mass civilization	3
The unpolitical Thomas Mann	4
Julien Benda, cleric	7
Karl Mannheim's intellectuals	9
Ortega's aristocratic vision	12
F.R. Leavis's critical minority	15
The discourse of Kulturkritik	18
2 In the wars	22
Freud's critique of Kultur	25
Woolf's androgyny	28
Orwell's English	35
Marxist incursions	42
Anti-fascist culture	46
3 Welfare?	49
Eliot's whole way of life	51
Hoggart and the abuses of literacy	55
4 A reckoning	61
Raymond Williams: beyond culture-and-society	64
From paternalism to democracy	69

PART II
CULTURAL STUDIES

1 A theory	77
Williams: creation is ordinary	79
Marxism and cultural theory	83
2 A centre	93
Literature and Contemporary Cultural Studies	93
From Hoggart to Stuart Hall	98
Ten years of Cultural Studies	101
The new subject	104
3 A theatre of critical situations	107
Hall: beyond New Left 'culturalism'	108
The structures of signification	111
New times for subjectivity	114
Identities in motion	119
Wrestling with Marxism	124
4 Towards popular culture?	132
Populism in Cultural Studies	134
Bimbos and fans	141
Organic intellectuals?	145
The 'politics' of metaculture	148

PART III
METACULTURE AND SOCIETY

The desire called Cultural Studies	157
Between past and future	159
Metaculture and society	163
Cultural politics?	169

NOTES	175
GLOSSARY	181
BIBLIOGRAPHY	183
INDEX	193