

CONTENTS

	Acknowledgments and editorial notes	page xv
INTRODUCTION	An overview of scope and method	1
PART I	CONTEXTS: INTELLECTUAL, PSYCHOLOGICAL, AND NATIONAL	17
	Prologue to Part I	19
1	MODERNS, ANCIENTS, AND THE SECULAR: THE LIMITS OF SOUTHERN HEGEMONY	25
	Reading the classics	25
	Fallen, fallen, a silent heap	33
	One perpetual ferment	36
	Caesar and Virgil shall differ but in sound	39
2	THE SPIRITUAL: TRUTH WAS NOT THE INCLINATION OF THE FIRST AGES	48
	Vain wisdom and false philosophy	48
	Stoics and Epicureans	55
	Two capitals of the Christian world	66
	Towards a new age	74
3	AN AMBITION TO EXCEL	78
	Trying the bow of Ulysses	79
	The progress of genres	86
	Imitation and emulation	91
	Emulation and benevolent combat	99

CONTENTS

4	THE MAKING OF A MODERN CANON	114
	See former bards complete the whole	115
	From Dryden to Pope	121
	Improved by experience	127
	New genres and a communal canon	131
	A canon of competing excellences	135
PART II	TEXTS WITHIN CONTEXTS. ESSAYING ENGLAND: OUR GENIUS, OUR CLIME	143
	Prologue to Part II	145
5	DRYDEN'S "ESSAY OF DRAMATICK POESIE:" THE POETICS OF NATIONALISM	150
	Dryden and readings of the "Essay"	150
	I am neither a Greek nor a Latin	154
	Dedication, frame, and character	163
	Crites, Eugenius, and Lisideius:
	Ancients, English, and French	169
	Lisideius, Sorbière, and Neander:
	French and English	173
	Neander triumphans	178
	Jonson agonistes	184
	Separating	190
6	HOMERIC WARS	193
	A schism among the wits	194
	Deficiencies in the art and the artist	201
	Absolutely sunk and ruin'd:
	anti-Homeric paradigms	212
	Homer à la mode	219
	Unworthy deeds and the new epic hero	226

CONTENTS

7	THE "PAX ROMANA" AND THE "PAX BRITANNICA": THE ETHICS OF WAR AND THE ETHICS OF TRADE	237
	The "pax Romana": in fine he exterminates the people	239
	Honors and riches by war alone	250
	The "pax Britannica": the benevolence of trade	257
	The theology of trade	265
	Trade and the rhetoric of peace	270
8	"WINDSOR FOREST" AND "THE RAPE OF THE LOCK"	276
	"Windsor Forest" and the "pax Romana"	276
	Pope and his poems of peace	283
	The "Rape of the Lock" and the "bellum Homericum"	296
	Belinda and Thalestris	307
	Thalestris and the Amazons	311
	Clarissa: to open more clearly the moral of the poem	317
PART III	GROWING ONE'S OWN. THE BRITISH ODE FROM COWLEY TO GRAY	329
	Prologue to Part III	331
9	GREEK JOCKEYS AND BRITISH HEROES: THE RISE AND FALL OF THE PINDARIC ODE	334
	Greek alternatives and Greek vices	334
	The Cowleyan revolution	338
	Pindar, politics, and community	347
	Changing the guard: Young and others	350

CONTENTS

10	ODES TO THE NATION AND THE NORTH: DRYDEN, COLLINS, AND GRAY	359
	Dryden's "Anne Killigrew": towards a new Pindaric political ode	359
	Collins and the mid-century evolution	372
	Gray's British context	384
	"The Progress of Poesy" and "The Bard": transplanting the seats of empire and of praise	389
PART IV	EXPANDING THE BORDERS. JEWS AND JESUS: THIS ISRAEL, THIS ENGLAND	405
	Prologue to Part iv	405
11	THE HOUSE OF DAVID AND THE HOUSE OF ST. GEORGE: PHILOSEMITISM, HEBREWS, AND HANDEL	408
	This excellent religion	408
	The God of Israel is our God also	415
	The words of God in Israel and in England	423
	Handel has read his Bible very well	451
	Moses and Handel: the poem of "Israel in Egypt"	458
12	BEYOND THE HEBREW LEAVEN: SMART AND THE GOD IN CHRIST	446
	Old Testament, old news	446
	Poetic form and kingly form	455
	Smart's "Song to David"	463

CONTENTS

PART V	CELTS, GERMANS, AND SCOTS: TOWARDS A UNITED KINGDOM	475
	Prologue to Part v	477
13	CELTIC SCOTLAND	481
	Celts and Jews	482
	Peopling the Judeo-Celtic world	485
	The Celtic Druid and the patriarchal past	491
	Celts, classics, and Germans: friendship and carnage	495
	Resigned to others' terms	504
	"Apologia pro vita Scotiae"	507
	"Humphry Clinker" and the Scottish paradise	512
	Celts, Sarmatians, and Anglo-Saxons: Macpherson on British history	516
14	OSSIAN IN SCOTLAND, GREAT BRITAIN, AND MODERN EUROPE: JOINING BRITANNIA'S ISSUE	526
	Ossian and Scotland: he vindicates the glory of his own country	530
	Everyone's Ossian	541
	Ancient Greek wolves and modern Celtic heroes	548
	Knitting the fabric	553

CONTENTS

15	CONCLUSION. SYNTHESIZING ALL THE NATIONS UNDER HEAVEN	557
	A mingled heritage and reception	559
	Civilized restraint	567
APPENDIX	The text of Handel's "Israel in Egypt"	572
	Index	577