

Contents

	Page
Tables	ix
Figures.....	xi
Acknowledgements	xiii
Preface.....	xv
Foreword.....	xix

Chapter 1

Meter: In General and In Its Particulars

1.1 General concepts. "Vertical" and "horizontal" analyses of meter	1
1.1.1 Main structural feature of syllabo-tonic verse	1
1.1.2 The two basic problems	4
1.1.3 Most general form of iambic meter: "vertical" analysis	5
1.1.4 English iambic pentameter defined	7
1.1.5 "Horizontal" analysis for comparing metrical subsystems ...	15
1.2 Problems of attribution	18
1.3 Links between verse form and meaning	25
Notes	28

Chapter 2

Evolution of Stress Profiles. Periodization

2.1 Principles of stressing	31
2.1.1 Stress vs. non-stress	31
2.1.2 Word and phrase stress in prose and in verse	32
2.1.3 Stressing monosyllabic words	36
2.2 Background: stress profiles of loose and rigid verse.....	39
2.3 Chambers' and Wentersdorf's chronologies.....	47
2.4 Evolution of ictic stresses in Shakespeare	53
2.5 Evolution of non-ictic stresses in Shakespeare	67
2.6 Evolution of ictic stresses in Marlowe's and Byron's poetic cycles	79

2.7 Shakespeare's non-dramatic verse	85
2.8 Evolution of syllabic structure of Shakespeare's verse	87
Note	93

Chapter 3

Homogeneous and Heterogeneous Plays: Authorship and Style

3.0 Preliminary notes	95
3.1 Rhythm variation by acts	96
3.1.1 Evolution tendencies in Shakespeare	96
3.1.2 Homogeneous and heterogeneous plays: typology	105
3.2 Contrast between groupings of acts or scenes in three questionable or stylistically heterogeneous plays	121
3.3 Play-in-Play	131
Note	133

Chapter 4

How Personages Speak: Rhythmical Differentiation of Characters

4.0 Preliminary remarks	135
4.1 Formal analysis of utterances	136
4.1.1 Lines split between speakers	136
4.1.2 Utterances of different lengths	148
4.2 Character study	152
4.2.1 Differentiation of characters through rhythm	152
4.2.2 Evolution of characters	174
Note	176

Chapter 5

Line Endings: Accentual and Syllabic Structure

5.1 Problems; principles of analysis	177
5.2 General evolution of line endings in Shakespeare	181
5.3 Some particulars of the evolution of line endings	190
5.4 Line endings of acts and scenes in four controversial plays	192
Note	201

Chapter 6

Phrase Endings: Aspects of Rhythm; Author's Idiosyncrasy

6.1 The problem	203
6.1.1 Linguistic aspect	204

6.1.2 Verse theory aspect	206
6.1.3 The aspect of epochs and individual styles	207
6.2 Material	207
6.3 Grammatical types of proclitic and enclitic phrases. General information	208
6.4 General analysis of proclitic and enclitic phrases: rhythm and the authors' idiosyncrasy	214
6.5 Particular grammatical patterns of proclitic and enclitic phrases: grammatical and semantic aspects of rhythm.....	219
6.6 Resum: grammar and word semantics as aspects of rhythm.....	225
6.7 Postscript: Word Boundary Rhythm and the Epoch.....	226
Notes	228

Chapter 7

Rhythmical Figures: Structural Types, Grammatical Features and Compositional Functions

7.1 Preliminary remarks. Aim and material.....	231
7.2 Types of "rhythmical figures" in English iambic verse: general characteristics.....	233
7.3 Incidence of different rhythmical figures in Shakespeare's verse and in the texts of later poets	239
7.4 Grammatical features of rhythmical figures	241
7.4.1 Morphology	241
7.4.2 Syntax.....	253
7.5 Rhythmical-grammatical patterns	265
7.6 Compositional function of rhythmical figures in rhymed verse ...	266
7.6.1 Correlation with stress profiles	267
7.6.2 Distribution in verse lines of a stanza and poem	278
7.7 Summing up	280
Notes	288

Chapter 8

Rhythm and Meaning

8.0 Preliminary remarks	287
8.1 A more general stylistic analysis of monosyllabic figure W	288
8.2 Analysis of the disyllabic figure SW.....	292
8.2.1 Adjectives in SW-I.....	292
8.2.2 Method of componental analysis for rhythmical figures.....	293
8.2.3 Semantic characteristics of SW-I containing a verb	295
8.2.4 Semantic characteristics of nouns in SW-I	299
8.2.5 Adjectives forming SW-I	301

8.2.6 Preliminary conclusions.....	302
8.3 The disyllabic figure WS-1.....	303
8.3.1 General stylistic (expressive) characteristics of the verbs	303
8.3.2 Semantic characteristics of verbs in WS-1	305
8.4 The trisyllabic figure WSW-1.....	312
8.5 The disyllabic figure WS-2.....	315
8.6 The trisyllabic figure WSW-2.....	321
8.7 General resumé of semantic functions of rhythmical figures.....	321
8.7.1 Semantic categories coupled with all rhythmical figures	322
8.7.2 Semantic differences among the rhythmical figures.....	323
8.7.3 Connections between parts-of-speech and syntactic properties of rhythmical figures and semantic information	323
8.7.4 Rhythmical-grammatical-semantic-lexical patterns	324
8.7.5 Genre and period characteristics in use of semantic and stylistic potential of rhythmical figures.....	328
Notes	329

Chapter 9

Conclusion: Iambic Pentameter and Shakespeare's Idiosyncrasy

9.0 Preliminary remarks	331
9.1 English iambic meter and Shakespeare's verse	331
9.1.0 Basic accentual-syllabic features of phrase structure in English	331
9.1.1 Most general definition of English iambic pentameter	332
9.1.2 Stress profiles as an element of meter	333
9.1.3 Meter and rhythmical figures	336
9.2 Problems of genre and style: rhythmical markers	339
9.2.1 Shakespeare's genres; dramatic and non-dramatic verse	339
9.2.2 Stylistic differentiation within texts, compositional laws and structural isomorphism	341
9.2.3 Rhythmical-grammatical-semantic-lexical patterns	344
9.3 Verse form and meaning.....	345
9.3.1 Variations of iambic pentameter and meaning	345
9.3.2 Rhythmical figures and meaning	346
9.4 Verse form and the poet's idiosyncrasy	347
9.4.1 General summary	347
9.4.2 Four questionable plays	348
9.5 Final remarks	350
Bibliography.....	353
Sources analysed and quoted	370
Index	373

Tables

1.1 Stress profile data for Russian, English and Italian verse and verse models	10-11
2.1 Shakespeare: stress profiles of ictic positions by periods	46
2.2 Stress profiles (ictic positions) of Shakespeare's works	49-51
2.3 Stress profiles of Shakespeare's older and younger contemporaries	52
2.4 Synchronic comparison of plays by different authors	66
2.5 Shakespeare: non-ictic stress profiles by periods	68
2.6 Stress profiles (non-ictic) of Shakespeare's works	69-71
2.7 Differentiated stress profiles, non-ictic	74-75
2.8 Stress profiles (ictic) of Marlowe's dramas	81
2.9 Stress profiles (non-ictic) of Marlowe's dramas	82
2.10 Stress profiles (ictic) of Byron's dramas	84
2.11 Stress profiles (non-ictic) of Byron's dramas	85
2.12 Syllabic structure of dramatic verse	93
3.1 Stress profiles of separate acts in Shakespeare's dramas, arranged chronologically	97-102
3.2 Range of rhythm variation by acts, Shakespeare's plays	107
3.3 Comparison of range of dispersion of Shakespearean with other plays	109
3.4 Stress profiles of separate acts, 13 non-Shakespearean plays	110-112
3.5 Range of dispersion by acts of 13 non-Shakespearean plays	113
3.6 Mean deviation of ictic stressing by acts	118-119
4.1 Places of utterance junctures in Shakespeare's dramas	137-138
4.2 Places of utterance junctures generalized by periods	139
4.3 Places of utterance junctures in Byron's dramas	140
4.4 Stress profiles of whole texts compared with split lines	141
4.5 Stress profiles of long, medium and short utterances in 24 role texts	153-155
4.6 Rhythmical characteristics of 26 personages	158-159
5.1 Structure of line endings by periods	182
5.2 Structure of line endings in Shakespeare's dramas	183-184
5.3 Structure of line endings in Marlowe's dramas	186
5.4 Structure of line endings in Byron's dramas	189
5.5 Feminine endings in "Titus Andronicus"	193
6.1 Proclitic and enclitic phrases	215
6.2 Proportion of proclitic vs enclitic attributive phrases	219
6.3 Proportion of proclitic vs enclitic verb + adverb phrases	220
7.1 Incidence of types of polysyllabic rhythmical figures	240
7.2 Part-of-speech correlation of monosyllables on W and S	242

Tables—continued

7.3 Part-of-speech correlation of monosyllables in SW-1	243
7.4 Part-of-speech correlation of monosyllables in WS-1	244
7.5 Part-of-speech correlation of disyllabic words in WS-2	249
7.6 Part-of-speech correlation of monosyllabic words in verse outside of multi-syllabic figures	250
7.7 Part-of-speech correlation of monosyllabic words in prose	250
7.8 Part-of-speech correlations in the (1___) form in verse outside rhythmical figures	251
7.9 Part-of-speech correlations in (1___) forms in prose	251
7.10 Syntactic functions of monosyllabic verbs in WS-1	259
7.11 Syntactic functions of disyllabic verbs in WS-2	263
7.12 Stress profiles for each line of "The Rape of Lucrece"	268
7.13 Stress profiles for each line of Shakespeare's sonnets	269-270
7.14 Stress profiles for each line of iambic tetrameter stanzas rhymed abab	271
7.15 Stress profiles for each line of iambic tetrameter stanzas rhymed aabb	271