

Contents

Preface	vii
Abbreviations	xi
Sources of Quotations	xiii

PART I

The Beginning of a Philosophical Adventure: 1935-1945

I. A Critique of Psychology and Its Philosophical Significance	3
Revolt against Rationalism	3
Critique and Reorientation of Psychology	5
Outline of a New Metaphysical Anthropology	9
Some Critical Considerations	14
II. A Phenomenology of Perception	17
The Proper Sphere of Philosophy: The Lived World	17
The Body and the Lived World	20
The Significance of the Body in Modern Thought	24
Perception as Being-in-the-World	31
Merleau-Ponty and Heidegger: Two Views of Being-in-the-World	39
Some Critical Questions	41
III. Search for a Method	47
Husserl's Phenomenology: Its Intentions and Its Outcome	48

Initiation of a Phenomenological Philosophy in France: Gabriel Marcel	63
Heidegger and the Phenomenological Movement	67
German Phenomenology Comes to France: Jean- Paul Sartre	69
Hegelian and Marxian Roots of Merleau-Ponty's Social Philosophy	75
The Redefinition of Metaphysics as Social Philosophy	84

PART II

The Evolution of a Social Philosophy: 1945-1955

IV. Merleau-Ponty and Postwar Politics in France: Marxism and Beyond	89
The Context for a New Social Philosophy: France, 1945-1947	89
A Politics of Mediation	94
The Viability of Proletarian Humanism	95
The Critics and the Issues	102
Interlude: France, 1948-1955	104
Proletarian Humanism Reconsidered	109
New Horizons	113
V. Merleau-Ponty and Sartrian Existentialism— Political and Philosophical	116
Acquaintance and Independent Study: 1927- 1940	116
Collaboration: 1941-1952	117
Verbal Warfare: Ideology and the End of Ideology—1952-1955	121
Partial Rapprochement: 1956-1961	133
The Limitations of Sartrian Existentialism Philosophically Defined	135

PART III

Transformations and Continuities: 1950-1961

VI.	Toward a Philosophy of Being: The Intersection of History and Nature	143
	Toward a Dialectical Philosophy of History and Nature	143
	The Dimensions of the Relationship between History and Nature Philosophically Defined	148
	Note on a Theological Attempt To Bifurcate History and Nature	153
	Toward the Intersection of History and Nature: The Relation of Science to Philosophy	154
VII.	The Reappropriation of a Philosophical Tradition	164
	From Political Philosophy to Phenomenology	164
	Reassessment of the History of Philosophy	174
	Merleau-Ponty and Bergson	180
	A Backward Glance at the Critics	187

PART IV

Old and New Perspectives on Some Philosophical Problems: 1945-1961

VIII.	The Role of Artistic Expression in Merleau-Ponty's Social Philosophy	195
	The Creative Process	195
	Language as Creative Expression: Merleau-Ponty and Ferdinand de Saussure	197
	Painting as Creative Expression: Merleau-Ponty and André Malraux	204
	Art and Commitment	210
	The Significance of Merleau-Ponty's Philosophy of Artistic Expression	212
IX.	The Role of Religion in Merleau-Ponty's Social Philosophy	215

Merleau-Ponty's Rejection of Christianity	215
Interpretation and Reinterpretation of Christian Religious Consciousness	219
The Significance of Religion in Merleau-Ponty's Social Philosophy	232

PART V
Epilogue

X. The Contingency of Existence and the Endurance of Meaning	239
The Life of the Man and Its Embodiment in a Philosophical Vision	239
The Limitations and Contributions of the Philosophical Vision	244
The Limitations and Contributions of the Life of the Man	252
Conclusion	257
Notes	259
Bibliography	301
Index	327