

Contents

---

I	Introduction	I
I.	The Structure of the Argument	I
II.	Outline of the Book	7
III.	Intellectual Contexts	23
IV.	Mill Today	24
 I System of Logic
2	A Socratic Moment: Truth, Liberty, and Democracy	31
I.	Truth and Logic	32
II.	Socrates	36
III.	Socrates and Liberty of Thought and Discussion	37
IV.	Democracy	40
V.	Liberalism	46
3	The Method of Reform: Mill's Encounter with Bentham and Coleridge	49
I.	Philosophic Radicalism	50
II.	The Critique of Bentham	52
III.	John Sterling and the Coleridgeans	54
IV.	Method in the Social Sciences	57
V.	The Considerations and the Method of Reform	65
4	Psychology, Character, National Character, and the Science of Politics	72
I.	The Science of Ethology	72
II.	Ethology between Psychology and Education	78
III.	Ethology in the Logic	82
IV.	Did Mill Abandon Ethology?	85
V.	Political Ethology	87
VI.	Representative Government and Its Foundations	88

II The Spell of Comte

5 A Dialogue Concerning Philosophy	97
i. Comte's Role in Mill's Evolving Philosophy	99
ii. Mill Turns to Political Economy	101
iii. Mill's Dialogue with Comte	105
6 The Mature Mill	111
i. Why Auguste Comte and Positivism was Written	113
ii. The Changed Role of the Logic	116
iii. Mill's Assessment of Comte's Philosophy	119
iv. Comte and Liberalism	120
v. Political Economy and Social Science	123
vi. Spiritual and Temporal Powers	123
vii. Epicurean Morality	125
viii. Liberty and Despotism	127

III Principles of Political Economy

7 The Circle of Liberty	131
i. 'Civil, or Social Liberty'	131
ii. Security	134
iii. Statics and Dynamics	137
iv. Security and Liberty	139
v. Mill's Circle	141
vi. 'One Very Simple Principle' Applied	144
vii. Conclusion	150
8 The Journey to Socialism: From Liberty and Representative Democracy to Co-operation	151
i. The Legacy of Tocqueville	152
ii. Liberty and Representative Democracy	157
iii. Active Character	160
iv. Co-operation	165
9 From Co-operation to Socialism	168
i. The Journey to Socialism	168
ii. The Stationary State	169
iii. Two Theories Regarding the Working Classes	171
iv. Co-operative Associations	176

CONTENTS

10	Justice and Private Property in the Principles and 'Chapters on Socialism'	180
	I. Property in the Principles	182
	II. Property and British National Character	187
	III. The Critique of Existing Society	188
	IV. Socialist Objections Examined	189
	V. Revolutionary versus Experimental Socialism	192
	VI. The Future of Private Property	197
11	Distributive Justice in Utilitarianism	200
	I. Distributive Justice in Utilitarianism	201
	II. Equality	203
	III. A 'Theory' of Justice?	205
	IV. Was Mill a Socialist?	210
12	God and the Religion of Humanity	212
	I. Mill's Self-Censorship	213
	II. Separation of Spiritual and Temporal Powers	216
	III. The Religion of Humanity	220
	IV. Mill and Religion	227
13	Conclusion: Liberty and Despotism in The Subjection of Women	231
	I. Mill's Method	232
	II. Despotism	237
	III. Religion	241
	IV. The Future	243
	V. Equality, Justice, Liberty, Utility	245
	VI. Character	252
	VII. Civilization, Improvement, and Progress	255
	VIII. Conclusion	258
	Notes	261
	Bibliography	287
	Index	303