

Contents

1	Introduction	15
2	Tim O'Brien, Going after Cacciato	23
2.1	The Observation Post Chapters	25
2.2	The Memory Chapters	31
2.3	The Imagination Chapters	48
3	Michael Herr, Dispatches	57
3.1	Dispatches in the Context of the New Journalism and the Non-Fiction Novel	58
3.2	Introduction to Major Themes	59
3.3	Information and Language Use	62
3.4	Helicopter and the Sense of Place	64
3.5	Seeing	66
3.5.1	Movies	68
3.5.2	John Wayne	70
3.5.3	Voyeurism	73
3.6	War and Male Sexuality	74
3.6.1	Women	76
3.6.2	Identifying with the Soldiers	77
3.7	Time	79
3.8	Telling	82
3.9	Conclusion	84
4	The Male Canon and the War Novel	87
4.1	Legacies of the Great War	87
4.1.1	Non-literary Legacies	88
4.1.2	Literary Legacies	89
4.2	Women and War	93
4.2.1	Women and the Great War	93
4.2.2	War as Gendering Activity	95
4.3	New Perspectives	99
5	Marian Faye Novak, Lonely Girls with Burning Eyes	103
5.1	Marrying a Marine	103
5.2	Female vs. Male Initiation	110
5.3	The Homefront	114
5.4	Putting the War Time into Context	119

6	Joan Silver and Linda Gottlieb, Limbo and Jonellen Heckler, Safekeeping	123
6.1	The Settings	123
6.2	Limbo	124
6.3	The Public Attitude	127
6.4	The Impact of the Family	129
6.4.1	The Children	129
6.4.2	The Mothers-in-law	132
6.5	The Military	134
6.6	Female Bonding	136
6.7	Political Conspiracy	138
6.8	The Endings	142
6.9	Conclusion	145
7	Patricia L. Walsh, Forever Sad the Hearts	149
7.1	Introduction and Setting	149
7.2	Nursing in Vietnam	151
7.2.1	Illnesses and Wounds	151
7.2.2	The Supply Situation	152
7.2.3	Incompetence	154
7.2.4	Professional Conflicts	157
7.3	Exposed to War	161
7.3.1	Physical Dangers	161
7.3.2	Nurses as Grunts	162
7.4	Being an American Woman in Vietnam	166
7.5	The Vietnamese	169
7.6	Conclusion	175
7.6.1	Forever Sad the Hearts	175
7.6.2	Lynda van Devanter, Home before Morning	176
8	Joan Didion, Democracy	179
8.1	Prefiguring Democracy : "Letter from Paradise" and "In the Islands"	179
8.2	The Exposition	182
8.3	Narrative Technique and Literary Allusions	186
8.4	Characters and Plot	192
8.5	Speech and Historical Awareness	194
8.6	Reconstructing the Family History	203
8.7	Information, Gambling, and Business	208
8.8	Saigon	213
8.9	The Frontier	216
8.10	Conclusion	220

9	Jayne Anne Phillips, Machine Dreams	225
9.1	Structure and Title	225
9.2	Men and Machines	227
9.2.1	Mitch	227
9.2.2	Billy	230
9.3	Women: History, Horses, Home	235
9.3.1	Jean's Concept of Family	235
9.3.2	Danner and Animals	238
9.3.2.1	Katie and the Symbolism of the Horse	240
9.3.3	A Sense of Place	242
9.4	The Vietnam War	246
9.4.1	Billy	246
9.4.2	Danner	250
9.4.3	Patriotism and the American Frontier	253
9.5	The Ending	256
9.6	Conclusion	257
10	Bobbie Ann Mason, In Country	261
10.1	Introduction	261
10.2	The Role of Popular Culture	263
10.2.1	Television	263
10.2.2	Rock Music	267
10.3	Other People's Attitudes toward the Vietnam War	271
10.3.1	Sam's Family	271
10.3.2	Other Veterans' Reactions to the War	273
10.3.3	The Women's Wars	275
10.4	The Meaning of Texts	277
10.5	The Crisis	279
10.6	In Country as an Initiation Novel	281
10.7	The Image of the Bird	284
10.8	Cars	287
10.9	The Catharsis	288
10.10	A Literary Predecessor	293
11	Concluding Remarks	295
12	Works Cited	299
12.1	Primary Sources	299
12.2	Secondary Sources	301