

CONTENTS

Preface	XIII
List of Abbreviations, Sigla, and Technical Vocabulary	XXI

PART ONE

FROM PERSPECTIVIST OPTICS TO INTUITIVE COGNITION: THE BACKGROUND TO FOURTEENTH-CENTURY EPISTEMOLOGY

I. The Multiplication of Species: The Legacy of Roger Bacon	3
The Causal Chain of Light	6
The Species as Intentio	11
Assimilation and Representation in Knowledge	16
Difficulties in Bacon's Theory	20
II. From the Baconian Synthesis to the Epistemology of John Duns Scotus	27
Henry of Ghent	28
Peter Olivi	39
III. John Duns Scotus	55
Concepts, Intentions, and Intellectual Acts	62
Intuitive and Abstractive Cognition	68
Intuitive Cognition and Existential Certainty	75

PART TWO

INTERPRETATION AND RECONCEPTION

IV. Peter Aureol	85
The "esse apparens" and its Formation	89
The "esse apparens" and the Intellect's Proper Object ..	100
Intuitive and Abstractive Cognition	104
V. William of Ockham	113
Apprehension and Judgment	115
Ockham's Definition of Intuitive Cognition	123
The Attack on Sensible and Intelligible Species	130
The Response to Aureol	135
The Nature of Concepts	148

PART THREE

THE REJECTION OF OCKHAM'S THEORY OF KNOWLEDGE IN ENGLAND

VI. Oxford Between Scotus and Ockham	157
Richard Campsall	158
John of Reading	166
Reading's Defense of Species Against Ockham	174
VII. The Early Reaction to Aureol and Ockham: the Views of Walter Chatton	180
The Nature of Intuition and Abstraction	182
Chatton's Defense of Species	198
The Debate with Ockham Concerning Concepts, Proposi- tions, and the Object of Scientific Knowledge	202
Chatton, Ockham, and Lutterell	207
VIII. Oxford in the 1320s	209
Robert Graystones O.S.B.	210
Hugh Lawton, O.P.	212
John of Rodington, O.F.M.	216
Richard FitzRalph	236
IX. Oxford in the 1330s	243
Robert Holcot, O.P.	244
William Crathorn, O.P.	255
X. Adam Wodeham at London and Oxford	275
The Account of Knowledge in the Lectura Secunda	278
Wodeham's Analysis of Aureol's Understanding of Intuitive Cognition	288
Wodeham's Consideration of Aureol's "Apparent Being"	294
The Complexe Significabile as the Object of Knowledge	303
Oxford after Wodeham	310

PART FOUR

THE INTRODUCTION OF ENGLISH THEORIES OF KNOWLEDGE TO PARIS

XI. Paris 1318-1345: The Interpreters of Scotus and Aureol .	315
The Response to Aureol	319
The Dispute Between Bernard of Arezzo and Nicholas of Autrecourt	335
Paris 1339-1340: Autrecourt and the Documents ...	336
Autrecourt and Bernard on Intuitive Cognition	340

XII. Epilogue: Adam Wodeham's First Parisian Readers	353
The Bachelors of the Sentences in the Early 1340s	357
Autrecourt's Condemnation in the Context of the 1340s	377
Bibliography	384
Index mancriptorum	403
Index personarum et rerum	405