

CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS / ix

INTRODUCTION / xi

PART I / The Limits of the Dialogue

- Gerd Schroeter* Dialogue, Debate, or Dissent? The Difficulties of Assessing Max Weber's Relation to Marx / 2
- Robert J. Antonio* Values, History, and Science: The Meta-theoretic Foundations of the Weber-Marx Dialogue / 20

PART II / Theory

- Stephen Kalberg* The Role of Ideal Interests in Max Weber's Comparative Historical Sociology / 46
- Alan Sica* Reasonable Science, Unreasonable Life: The Happy Fictions of Marx, Weber, and Social Theory / 68
- Douglas Kellner* Critical Theory, Max Weber, and the Dialectics of Domination / 89
- Johannes Weiss* On the Marxist Reception and Critique of Max Weber in Eastern Europe / 117

PART III / Method

- Jürgen Kocka* The Social Sciences between Dogmatism and Decisionism: A Comparison of Karl Marx and Max Weber / 134
- Stephen P. Turner* Explaining Capitalism: Weber on and against Marx / 167

PART IV / History

*Lawrence A. Scaff
& Thomas Clay
Arnold* Class and the Theory of History: Marx on France and Weber on Russia / 190

Guenther Roth Marx and Weber on the United States—
Today / 215

*Wolfgang J.
Mommsen* Capitalism and Socialism: Weber's Dialogue with Marx / 234

Franco Ferrarotti Weber, Marx, and the Spirit of Capitalism: Toward a Unitary Science of Man / 262

PART V / Politics

Ira J. Cohen The Underemphasis on Democracy in Marx and Weber / 274

Stephen L. Esquith Politics and Values in Marx and Weber / 300

THE EDITORS / 319

THE CONTRIBUTORS / 321

INDEX / 325