

Contents

Introduction: Deconstructing the Documentary	1
1. Raw Materials	11
Verité	11
Interviews	13
Archival	14
Reenactments and Animation	15
Voice-over Narration	19
Title Cards	21
2. Meaning	26
Creating Meaning within the Interview Frame	26
Creating Visual Uniformity with Interviews	29
Creating Meaning with Objects in the Frame	32
Creating Meaning with Words	33
Interview-as-Narration	38
Creating Meaning with Verité	41
Open versus Closed Meanings	46
3. Narrative	55
The Setup	57
Position	61
The Crisis Moment	63
Producing the Narrative Turn	65
Producing the Narrative Turn with Juxtaposition	72
Micronarratives	75
Callbacks	76
Non-narrative Documentaries	80
4. Presence Framing	84
Observational Framing	85
The Semi-staged Scene	89
The Participatory Frame	91
Narration and the Participatory Frame	94
Voice-of-God Narration	98

vi Contents

Altering the Outcome	99
The Reflexive Frame	101
5. Flow	106
Unifying with Sound	106
Pivots and Pauses	109
Juxtaposition	112
Collective Memory	118
6. Time	120
The Experience of Time in Verité	120
The Interleaving of Scenes	123
Use of the Present Tense	124
7. Titles	130
Naming Characters	131
Conferring Legitimacy	133
Look and Feel	139
Subtitles	143
8. Archival Material	147
Archival Treatments	148
Manipulation of Documents and Newspaper Assets	152
Historical Shorthand	158
9. Sound	161
Sweetening	162
Foley	165
Time and Space	168
Framing Presence with Sound: The Cave and For Sama	171
10. Music	177
Fear of Music	178
Film versus Television	183
Verité versus Expository, Interviews versus Archival	184
Tone	186
Procedural Music	188

Conclusion: The Brave New World of Hybridity in Documentary	192
Acknowledgments	201
Appendix: Films and Television Shows Cited	203
Interviews with Author	211
Index	213